STATE AND TERRITORY.

A Fugitive Murderer Captured on a Reservation.

MOVEMENTS OF MR. VILLARD.

Let Jumping in a Montana Town—Results of the Montana Election—Notes From the Inland Empire—Etc.

SPOKANE FALLS, June 17.—The Indian, Paul Harry, murderer of Mrs. Henry and child, on Coeur d'Alene reservation two years ago, and who escaped from Rathdrum jail recently, is again in custody, having been captured by Sheriff William Marsh, of Kootenai county, single handed and alone.

Ever since his escape from jail, Paul Harry has been on the Coeur d'alene reservation, terrorizing everybody in the neighborhood. He was accompanied by three friends, all heavily armed. Paul Harry had made threats he would not be taken alive, and invited the officers of the law to come and get him. Last Friday morning Sheriff Martin went to the agency, remained in hiding until Paul Harry came along alone on foot, when the sheriff leveled a double barreled shotgun on him, at close range and commanded him to surrender. Though armed, Harry made no resistance and permitted the sheriff to disarm and handcuff him. He is now in Rathdrum jail, under a strong guard.

MR. VILLARD AT TACOMA.

He Will Have a Conference With Van Horne, of the Canadian Pacific.

TACOMA, W. T., June 17.—Henry Villard, T. F. Oakes, president of the Northern Pacific, and Paul Schulze arrived here this morning on a special train from Portland. President W. C. Van Horne, of the Canadian Pacific, will arrive to-morrow night, for a conference with Villard and Oakes.

A. C. Bassett, superintendent of the northern division of the Southern Pacific road, is here.

The chamber of Commerce of Tacoma will give Henry Villard a reception at The Tacoma to-morrow evening.

AN ANOMALOUS CONDITION.

A Montana Townsite Being Jumped by the Enterprising Inhabitants.

HELENA, June 17.—Yesterday Granite was the scene of much excitement, when it was learned that a portion of the townsite had been jumped by Mike and Ed Moore, and everyone, who lived in that section took a hand in the deal and commenced jumping the property on which they lived and any other that was thought could be jumpable. Fences were hastily constructed around many pieces of ground, and men and women alike stood guarding their property with stove pokers, brooms, and various implements of torture.

The ground in question has always been supposed to be the property of the Gran to Company, and they have collected the rents from the same for over a year, and always held the ground on a location, but have not had it patented.

Last year Ed Moore sunk a well 100 feet deep near his hotel, and claims to have found a ledge in the well, which entitles him to locate the ground as mineral land, and unless the Granite Company can prove their claim jon on the property, to be lawful they will have a hard fight to retain possession.

THE MONTANA ELECTION.

The Democrats Have a Majority of Three in the Constitutional Convention.

HELENA, Mont., June 17.—The official board finished the counting of the returns of the constitutional convention election to-day. The democrats have elected thirty-eight delegates and the republicans thirty-five. Breen, a labor candidate, is an old-time democrat, and the political preference of the one independent candidate elected is unknown. Putting the independent in the republican, and the labor candidate in the democratic column, the totals would be thirty-nine to thirty-six, no change in the majority of three.

The total vote polled, taking the highest figures for each opposing candidate, is 10,597, of which the democrats polled 5385 and the republicans 5211. The labor candidates received 258 votes and the independent 203, making the full vote 11,245.

FROM WALLA WALLA.

Escape of Two Trusties From the Penitentiary—The Hunt Subsidy.

WALLA WALLA, W. T., June 17.—Friday afternoon two trusties at the penitentiary, named J. B. McCroskey and Grant Wilson made their escape. But a men had but a slight time to serve. When last heard from last Sunday night, they were going toward Portland.

Company A, N. G. W., ordered to Seattle by the governor, marched to the depot this afternoon, headed by the Second cavalry band, and with an escort of honor from the Walla Walla scouts. At the depot the band went to the front platform countermanding the order to go to Seattle.

The citizens are exceedingly severe on Villard's attitude toward this section, which has had the effect of strengthening the friendliness toward the Hunt system. The petition to have a bonus for $250,000 authorized by the next legislature, has now been signed by 1700 resident tax payers, of which the whole number is but 1800.

FROM COLFAX.

District Court in Session—Improvement Notes—Etc.

COLFAX, W. T., June 17.—District court convened here this morning, Judge W. G. Langford presiding. The docket is an unusually long one, the calling over Tuesday, June 18th, and twenty-eight contest cases. Prominent among the attorneys from a distance present at this term are Hons. John R. Allen and Thomas H. Brents, of Walla Walla, and W. H. Holmes and R. C. Smith, of Pomeroy. The city presents an animated appearance. The hotels are crowded with clients, lawyers and witnesses.

Rev. G. W. Black lets the city, and will proceed at once to building for a seminary for the constituency of this place of a Catholic church and school, to cost in the neighborhood of $3000. That he will be successful is assured by the willingness and liberality already expressed by leading citizens.

Improvements under way and in contemplation are encouraging to the future of the city. Work on the construction of the new Union brick block between Wall and Upton streets, and fronting on Main street for 100 feet, will commence in a few days. It will be three stories in hight, and will be built by Messrs. Robert Grostein, A. Gerber and the Masonic and Odd Fellows' societies of Colfax.

It is estimated by contractors and builders that fully a quarter of a million of dollars will be expended in new and substantial buildings before snow flies.

The foundation for the new courthouse is well along. This will be the most handsome public art ucture in Eastern Washington.

A scheme is on foot for the incorporation of a water company, which will have for its object the conveying of water from the North Palouse river to a large reservoir on a site above the city, to be used for fire and sewerage purposes.

Fifteen hundred dollars was raised among the citizens of Colfax in a few days for a Fourth of July celebration, which will be held at the Whitman county fair ground, one-half mile below town.

An entertaining programme has been arranged, including a display of fireworks at night.

THE SITUATION AT SEATTLE.

It Is Thought That the Police Will Soon Resume Control.

SEATTLE, W. T., June 17.—At a meeting of Union veterans held to-night, resolutions were passed strongly commendatory of the efficient services rendered by the militia since the fire, and thanking them heartily for their self-denial and valuable aid. It was then resolved that a committee be appointed to wait upon the mayor and common council and offer the services of the Veteran club to relieve the militia of their duties if the authorities do not think the police alone can care for the city, but it is probable that the police will soon be restored to take care of the city, for they are already and they feel they are amply competent to preserve public peace.

Contributions are yet pouring in freely. They now amount to over $65,000, of which a very large amount has been disbursed. This is exclusive of the fund of over $70,000 raised in Tacoma.

There are absolutely no new features in the situation here to-day.

THE PETALUMA RELIEF FUND.

PETALUMA, Cal., June 17.—The committee appointed to raise funds for the Johnstown sufferers have collected $650, and have sent 300 to the governor of Pennsylvania, and $250 to Seattle.

BOND SALE AT HELENA.

The City's Paper Brought a Premium of Nearly 6 Per Cent.

HELENA, Mont., June 17.—An auction sale of Helena sewer bonds, to the amount of $150,000, took place to-day. The bidding was spirited, representatives of leading houses in Chicago, St. Paul, Toledo, Kansas City, New York and Cleveland being present. The lowest bid was a 6 per cent. premium, but the entire issue was knocked off to A. W. Baldwin, the agent for N. W. Harris, of Chicago, for $7720 premium, within $75 of 6 per cent. premium, which is one of the greatest bond sales of the day, showing the confidence of Eastern capitalists in Helena's solidity and future progress.

FROM SALEM.

Additions to the Asylum and the Penitentiary—The Murder Trials—Etc.

SALEM, Or., June 17.—The Capital Ice Works are completed and running, turning out a first-class article at the rate of three tons per day.

Deputy Doug Minto this evening brought to the insane asylum Andrew M. Borland, from Multnomah county.

Deputy Dan Sprague and a guard brought to the penitentiary this evening Joseph Fuson, sentenced to five years for larceny, and John Brockway, five years for perjury, from Multnomah county.

A. Castleman, of Baker, Union county, was brought to the insane asylum to-day.

Ella Smith Day, a young man formerly insane, was committed to the asylum from this city to-day. His insanity is hereditary.

John C. Arnold, of Pendleton; W. J. Martin, of Glendale, Douglas county; Chas. H. Carey, of Portland, and H. B. Hendricks, of Fossil, Gilliam county, were appointed notaries public to-day.

The H. R. Dunlway Lumber Company of East Portland, filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state to-day; capital stock, $100,000; principal place of business, East Portland; incorporators, H. R. Dunlway, E. B. Morgan and W. C. Dunlway.

The grand lodge of Good Templars, meets in this city to-morrow. A full attendance and an interesting session are expected.

William Atkinson, a gambler, well known as "San Jose Bill," was brought back here to-day by Sheriff Smith, of Astoria, and lodged in jail. He skipped the country last fall, going to Victoria, and was under two indictments for gambling. He kept out of Oregon until last week, and was arrested soon after he struck Astoria. His unnecessary absence will probably add to his punishment.

In the Hawkins murder trial, the motion for a continuance will be heard the first thing to-morrow morning at the opening of the court.

Chauncy Lockwood and Doll Nichols, two young men, were out on the river in a sailboat this afternoon, when the boat upset and assistance had to be rendered to bring them ashore.

Some sensation was created this evening by a positive statement in an evening paper that Perryman did not throw the rock at Beardsley, as alleged in the recent trial in which Beardsley was declared. The local editor of the paper warn witness in the case, and the wonder is he did not swear to these facts, instead of now coming out with them. The article claims that on the morning of the killing Mrs. Beardsley showed the reporter a rock which she claimed was the rock thrown by Perryman, and that it was not like, in kind or size, the rock produced in court.

THE PRESS OF WASHINGTON.

Ellensburg Sends a Cordial Invitation to the Association.

ELLENSBURG, W. T., June 17.—The Ellensburg board of trade, and the mayor of the city, sent the following invitation to-night to the Washington Press Association: "The board of trade and citizens of Ellensburg, respectfully invite your association to hold its annual session in Ellensburg. This city will extend you every privilege, and give you a cordial reception.

On Trial for Murder.

SEATTLE, June 17.—The trial of Fred C. Kline, for the murder of George A. Bashler, a Lake Union laundryman, September 12, 1888, commenced in the district court this afternoon. The defence will probably be emotional insanity.

A FAT GOOSE FOR KATE FIELD.

Governor Waterman's Opinion of the Viticultural Fund.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—Marcus D. Bornek, private secretary to Governor Waterman, was questioned in San Francisco this afternoon relative to the dilatory manner in which the state board of examiners audited bills coming before it for payment, especially those of the viticultural commission. In explanation of the latter, he said:

"The bulk of the appropriation is paid out each year in salaries, traveling expenses and giving entertainments. The rent of Platt's hall is $4200 per annum, salary of Miss Kate Field, $3000. The salaries of the Wetmore Brothers and other attachés bring those expenses up to about $12,000 per annum, leaving $2000 for other viticultural purposes. Because the governor has opposed these extravagances as useless expenditure of money, he has been charged with being opposed to the viticultural interests of the state, but it is nonsense. Governor Waterman thinks all that the viticultural commission was established for can be accomplished by Professor Hilgard, of the State university, at a cost to the state of about $5000 per annum, thus saving many thousands of dollars to the state. The governor is opposed to the Platt's hall experiment, and also to the Kate Field proposition. He does not think it right for the state to come into competition with the saloon-keepers of San Francisco nor for a woman to be sent abroad as a 'drummer' for the sale of wines of California, at an expense to the state of $250 per month. But one of the bills which the governor delayed signing was for $407.50 expended by Miss Field for one lecture in Washington, advocating wine—making her total cost to the state for the month of March $562.50. Why she gave a collation there, among other extravagances, which cost $169! Her bills never should have been audited, but there was no other resource left."

CALIFORNIA NEWS ITEMS.

Personal Notes.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—Judge Hoffman, of the United States district court, is spending his summer vacation at Monterey.

Next week Mr. Crocker, of the Third Congregational church, formerly of Portland, will leave the city on a vacation of two months. During his absence the pulpit of his church will be filled by Rev. F. B. Pullman, of New York.

M. Livingston, of Eugene, is stopping at the Grand.

J. Brady, of Portland, is here for a few days.

W. Marriott, a merchant from Seattle, is at the Grand.

L. P. W. Quimby, an old hotel-man of Portland, is in the city.

Richard Underwood Johnson, of the Century Magazine, who has been visiting various Californian towns for some weeks past, arrived to-day, and is at the Grand.

The Wounded Woman.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—Jane Ford, who was found in the Mission house Saturday with a bullet wound in her left breast, is still alive, but the physicians have no hopes of her recovery. Her tonsils has set in, and there is nothing seemed more certain that she was shot by a strange man, who afterwards made his escape through the window, but the police are satisfied that she shot herself. Julia Appel, a lay sister in the Magdalene asylum and a sister of the wounded woman, had undressed and washed her in common the Catholic faith, and she received all the rites of the church last night.

A Prosperous University.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—At the Methodist preachers' meeting Rev. Dr. Hirst, president of the Pacific university, was present and led the discussion. He stated that the proposed $100,000 endowment scheme was prospering. Rev. Dr. Boblitt, of Sacramento, had subscribed $5000, and altogether about $20,000 had been subscribed. It had been decided to build the music conservatory of wood instead of brick and stone, on economical grounds. Only $6000 is required to build it, $4,000 was all subscribed, and the edifice would be erected at once.

Judgment Against a Sailor.

SAN FRANCISCO June 17.—In the case of John Larsen, a sailor, for the recovery of money for board and lodging, Justice Murasky to-day gave judgment for the plaintiff, holding that under the state law a sailor's wages can be attached for debt. This is in opposition to that of Judge Finn, who held that a sailor's wages were exempted from attachment under both maritime and common laws.

The Santa Fe in California.

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—President W. B. Strong, of the Santa Fe, President Manchester, of the Santa Fe system in California, and General Manager Goodall, of the Santa Fe, arrived this evening. In an interview Mr. Strong said: "There will be no change in the policy of the Santa Fe, in Southern California. We don't intend building any more lines at present, but we intend to look after the lines already built and make them more serviceable.

The Reports Were Unfounded.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—Adjutant-General Ruggles received a telegram from Colonel Grierson, of Los Angeles, to-day, stating that General Torres has advised him that the reported telegraphic reports of the killing of a party of Mexicans by Indians in Sonora, 300 miles south of the international line, were without foundation. General Torres makes this report after a full investigation of the matter.

A Brief and Successful Strike.

SAN BERNARDINO, June 17.—The yardmen and switchmen at the Santa Fe depot struck out on a strike this morning. The alleged cause is a reduction of force to such an extent that much overtime would have to be put in by those retained, for which no extra pay was allowed. The officials acceded to all the demands of the strikers, and the men soon returned to work.

Warrants Issued for Opium Smugglers.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—Warrants have been issued for the arrest of C. H. Westcock and D. A. Gallagher, custom house officials, for complicity in an attempt to smuggle $15,000 worth of opium from the steamer Arabic in April last. The men were discharged from service at the time, and have since disappeared. It is supposed that they are in Victoria, B. C.

Grain Fields Burned.

STOCKTON, June 17.—Fires broke out again yesterday on Roberts island. Considerable grain was burned. The fire continued until late this afternoon, when it was controlled. Seventeen hundred and fifty acres of grain were burned, all of which was insured from $11 to $15 per acre.

Failure of Shirt Manufacturers.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—George W. McPherson and Major Conway, operating a shirt and clothing factory on Market street, under the firm name of McPherson & Conway, made an assignment to-day. The debts, so far as known, are $11,095.

Ninety Cords of Wood Burned.

SESSONS, June 17.—Fire this afternoon near here destroyed about ninety cords of railroad wood and also burned the track for as short distance, delaying the passenger train bound south from Portland for about seven hours.

The Proposed Cable to Honolulu.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—The Evening Post to-day states that $1,600,000 has been subscribed for the proposed cable between Honolulu and San Francisco and that the work of laying the cable will be commenced within eighteen months.

A Big Seizure of Lottery Tickets.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—Detectives seized 70,000 Louisiana Lottery tickets to-day at 109 Hess avenue. The detectives have been hunting for these tickets for a week. They say that they came from New York.

THE KANSAS STORM.

A Number of Lives Lost at Different Places.

THE STREAMS RUSHING TORRENTS

Valleys Flooded and Crops Destroyed—Seventeen More Bodies Taken From the Debris at Johnstown, Pa.

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—Additional advices about the disaster in Kansas from the wind and rain storm are that Uniontown, fifteen miles west of Fort Scott, is swept away, and two women and four children drowned. Uniontown is a place of 600 inhabitants, in the midst of a thickly settled country. It is feared the loss of life is heavier than reported. As the wires are down for fifteen miles on either side nothing can be learned.

The storm struck the western part of Bourbon county late at night, coming from the west, where it played great havoc. At Augusta it assumed the form of a cloud burst.

In Fort Scott it commenced raining Sunday morning very heavily. This caused a flood, carrying away several houses. The part of Fort Scott known as Belltown is entirely under water and the railroads are inundated and washed out.

IN OTHER SECTIONS.

IOLA, Kans., June 17.—Allen county has suffered severely during the past thirty-six hours from floods in the Neosho river and its principal tributaries. The streams have been unusually high all the spring, and the heavy rains Saturday night brought them out of their banks, flooding the bottoms for miles on either side.

There has been no loss of life or live stock, and those living on the lowlands were warned in time, but it is feared that hundreds of acres of wheat, which was just ripening and promised a very large yield, will be almost a total loss, while the subsequent corn and other crops will be greatly damaged.

The water reached the highest point this morning, since which time it has been slowly receding, and it is now hoped that the worst is past.

LOSS OF LIFE.

ELDORADO, Kas., June 17.—The upper valley of the Walnut is flooded from excessive rains, and the streams are higher than for years. Saturday night the river came up so suddenly that a family named Graham started for their home to the hights, but the mother and a babe were drowned. The father and one child escaped. Grain fields are flooded and much damage must result. A portion of the Missouri Pacific track is washed away. There have been no trains in over the Santa Fe lines yesterday. It is surmised that a number of people are drowned in the lower valley. The water is receding this morning.

A later rumor reports the drowning of O. Benman and a man named Cassidy.

THE DAY AT JOHNSTOWN.

Seventeen More Bodies Taken Out—The State to Supply Lumber.

JOHNSTOWN, June 17.—The weather here was gloomy and dismal to-day.

Seventeen more bodies were dug from the wreck-heaps to-day. Among them was the body of Mrs. Annie Bates, of Racine, Wis. She was a passenger on the day express lost on the fatal day. She was buried promptly; as were all the other bodies found.

At a meeting of the business men this afternoon, it was decided to ask the state authorities here for lumber with which to build temporary business places. The committee who waited on General Hastings, that gentleman said he would supply all the lumber desired within a week. Many of the temporary buildings will be constructed on the old rubbish square.

Five thousand five hundred men are at work on the ruins. Dynamite is being used freely, with good effect.

One hundred portable, ready-made houses have been ordered from Chicago, capable of accommodating 400 persons each. They will soon be up, and furnished completely with all necessities for house-keeping. If this lot proves satisfactory, the number will be increased to 1000. A Chicago firm agrees to put them up at cost.

It is being arranged to build a lock-up, when a large number of arrests, including people of ill-repute, will be made for stealing valuables from the wreckage. A general search will be made.

THE FRENCH NAVY.

A Declaration That the Men-of-War Are of an Antiquated Type.

PARIS, June 17.—In the chamber of deputies to-day, Vice-Admiral de Bompierre de Horney declared that the men-of-war now possessed by France were of an antiquated type and ought to be replaced by new vessels, which would equal in number and strength the united fleets of Germany and Italy. Only in this way would France be able to retain her rank of the second naval power of the world. He moved the appointment of a committee to inquire into the condition of the navy.

Admiral Rieunts, minister of marine, replying to Vice-Admiral Bellevarne, said that with the present credits it was impossible to increase the number of workmen occupied at the arsenals. The government contracts with private firms might, however, be increased. He would invest to the amount of 4,000,000 francs. This amount could be spread over five budgets. The admiralty, he said, was now effecting improvements in the old men of war and torpedo boats.

M. Chevillotte insisted upon the necessity of reform in naval matters. The debate was adjourned.

BUNKER HILL DAY.

Celebration of the Anniversary in Boston and San Francisco.

BOSTON, June 17.—Bunker Hill day was celebrated by a carnival parade in the forenoon and a military and civic parade in the afternoon.

BUNTING UNFURLED.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—The anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill to-day was observed at noon-day from by the unfurling of bunting from the masts of nearly all the vessels in the harbor. Even the owners of English vessels hung their colors.

CABLE NOTES.

In Memory of Father Damien.

LONDON, June 17.—At a meeting to-day, the Prince of Wales presiding, it was resolved to erect a memorial of the late Father Damien, who devoted the last years of his life to the care of the lepers of the Sandwich islands. The memorial will be erected at Molokai. It was also decided to construct a leper ward in London, where the study of leprosy will be encouraged.

Severe Hail Storms in Germany.

BERLIN, June 17.—Severe hail storms prevailed to-day in many parts of Germany. While a procession was passing through the streets of a Silesian town, five parades were struck by lightning and killed. Forty others received shocks.

Action Postponed.

LONDON, June 17.—In the commons to-day, William Henry Smith, the government leader, announced that the government has decided to postpone further proceedings in relation to the bill to put into effect sugar bounties.

Arrest of a Fugitive.

TORONTO, Ont., June 17.—A young Hebrew who has been living quietly here under the name of Samuel Gordon, was arrested last night, it being alleged that he is Samuel J. Ackerson, who was the principal in a recent gambling swindle at Springfield, Mont. Proceedings were instituted by his Chicago creditors, and Toronto detectives have been on the look out for him for a week. Extradition proceedings, under the recently passed tradition proceedings, under the recently passed tradition proceedings, will be taken. In the police court to-day Jack Orson was remanded until to-morrow, for the purpose of giving the prosecution a chance to complete its case.

Two Girls Butchered.

OMAHA, June 17.—Two daughters of John Lesvits, a farmer living near Gresham, Seward county, Neb., were murdered last night. Their parents, who were away, and on their return the eldest daughter, aged 18, was found dead on the floor in a pool of blood, with her throat horribly slashed. The body of the other daughter, aged 8, was lying on the yard with her throat cut from ear to ear. There is no clue to the murderers or perpetrators of the crime.

Arrested for Opium Smuggling.

NEW YORK, June 17.—James Boyd, porter on the steamer Colon, of the Pacific Mail line, that arrived from Aspinwall Saturday, has been arrested and held on a charge of smuggling $500 worth of opium. Ten packages were found on his person, and ten more in his bunk.

Boyd is supposed to be a middleman. Chinamen are engaged in extensive smuggling of the drug.

The Printers Convention Adjourned.

DENVER, Col., June 17.—The typographical convention met again this forenoon, and without transacting any business, adjourned to meet in Atlanta, Ga., next June. Most of the delegates leave for their homes to-night.

Growth of the Brewing Business.

Boston Herald.

Some figures presented at the meeting of the United States Brewers' Association show a wonderful growth of the business during the last twenty-five years. For instance, receipts of the government from the internal revenue tax on fermented liquors amounted to about $1,550,600 in 1868, when the tax was first imposed. In 1866 the figures rose to $5,000,000; in 1879 to $10,000,000; in 1882 to $15,000,000; and last year the tax amounted to $23,000,000. The quantity increased in the same ratio from 2,000,000 barrels in 1868 to over 24,000,000 in 1888. As this rate of growth it is small wonder that Englishman think they see a chance to make money by buying up American breweries.

Dalles City Election.

The Dalles held a city election yesterday for mayor, two councilmen, recorder and treasurer. Malcolm Moody received the nomination for mayor over J. Frank Davis who then came out on the independent ticket and was defeated, Mr. Moody being elected mayor by a majority of 112. Mr. E. N. Thornburg was re-elected councilman in the First ward and Mr. Hanson in the Second ward. Mr. George Knapp was re-elected recorder and Louis Border was re-elected treasurer.

LOGGING IN LEWIS COUNTY.

Sluice Dams Constructed for the Purpose of Floating Logs in Summer.

CHEHALIS, June 16.—"Cougar Flat," is the somewhat terrific title by which the valley in which runs Stillwater creek, is known to the denizens of that fertile region. It lies almost due west of Little Falls, or Sopena, as the railroad people call the station, and is principally in the extreme southern edge of Lewis county, a portion of it being in Cowlitz county. Stillwater creek is a tributary of the Olequa; its name is a misnomer, and its waters are as far from being still as could be imagined, at least when they were in the state nature designed them to be. The valley is from one-half to a mile broad, some eight miles long, and well settled its entire length by a thrifty and industrious people. Almost from its first settlement the occupation of the inhabitants has been principally logging. There are no mills in the valley, and the loggers' market is, and has always been, Portland. For years the loggers depended altogether on the winter rains to raise the Stillwater high enough to float their logs to the Cowlitz river, and many a summer has their trust been misplaced and the logs "hung up" high and dry on the riffles and banks of that stream. But now a new order of things has obtained dominion, and the logger has no fear of a dry winter, spring or summer. By means of sluice dams, which confine the water above them until such time as it is needed, the stream is made subservient to man, and the wheels of industry no more are clogged. Mr. J. U. Hartly, one of the principal and earliest loggers, was the first to adopt this plan of floating timber to market, and has made it very successful. He built a strong dam across the creek at a place where the water could be backed up without damage, and in the center placed two flood gates, which can be raised and lowered at will. When a sufficient depth of water is obtained by retaining it above the dam, and the logs are ready to move, the gates are raised by means of a windlass and a torrent of water goes rushing out into the channel of the stream below. With the water goes thousands of logs, following each other like sheep from the pen, leaping and bounding with the force of the current and hurrying onward with rapid speed to the rivers below. In a few hours the water has gone out and with it the labor of perhaps a hundred men for the season. The logs are followed down the stream by men in hightop boots armed with "peevys" or cant hooks, who see that the logs are not lodged in the overhanging brush or against banks or bars as the water recedes, and when they are floated down to Kelso, ten miles above the Cowlitz river, are all run into a boom. Before the logs are put into the water every one is branded with a mark of the logger, so that they are easily sorted from the boom and made into rafts for towage to the mills, the greater part of them going to Portland.

THE LIFE OF THE VALLEY.

The manner of floating logs has proved almost the life of the Stillwater valley, as by its means the principal occupation of the people has been made sure in its returns; where previously it had been very much of a game of chance. A few miles above the Hartly dam Fidler & Moore have a small one, and are running a large crew of men. There are now about 100 men engaged in logging in this little valley, besides many persons indirectly interested in their success. At the time of our visit the logs in the water, ready to be sent through the dams, were estimated at 9,000,000 feet, which, at $4 per 1000, would bring in the snug little sum of $36,000.

There is a vast amount of splendid fir and cedar timber along the steep sides of this valley and it will keep the present force in profitable occupation many years. Timber that is near to the water is worth $1 per 1000 stumpage, that is before being cut, and the loggers pay $1.50 for it in the water. Many trees will make as much as 60 to 80 feet, some twice as much, and as it is no uncommon thing to find from twenty to forty marketable trees on an acre, it will be seen that timber land is worth something. Fiddler & Moore are now logging from a quarter of a section of land bought from the railroad company by Mr. Rodgers for $800. Rodgers sold the land for $1500, and the latter is getting $1.50 per 1000 feet for the logs in the water. At this rate he will clear at least $5000 on the transaction and have the land left.

SOME GOOD FARMS.

But the occupation of the people is not altogether logging, as there are many good farms throughout the valley, and much good land to be cleared for the raaking of more. Hartly has a splendid place, as has G. C. Rodgers and William Booth. Stevens and others, with such fine stock upon them. The soil is like that of all the valleys in Lewis county, a deep, sandy loam, very productive, in not only are all kinds of grain and vegetables successfully grown, but they have some good orchards in bearing. As the timber is taken from the hillsides, they will be seeded to grass and soon become the most valuable pasturage; thus gradually the transition will be made from one occupation to an to another and in time the Stillwater valley will be as noted for farm and dairy products as it now is for logs.

Probably Not the Same.

Coos Bay News.

THE OREGONIAN contains a letter from Lillian McGarry, of Johnstown, Pa., asking for information regarding James McGarry, a survivor of the Alaskan, who came ashore near Empire on a raft. She says she had a brother 24 years old, who was roughing it in California, named D. G. McGarry, who talked of working his way to Puget sound on a boat, and thinks James McGarry must be he. We are of the opinion that she is mistaken. We talked with McGarry several times while he was in town, recruiting from his eventful trip on the raft. He is a man nearer 40 years old than 24, and has been on the coast for years. He has followed a seafaring life for a long time, and has had rather hard luck, having been shipwrecked no less than six times. Emerald Isle, and has been roughing it all his life.

VENOMOUS SERPENTS.

Characteristics of Those Found in the United States.

The Rattlesnake, the Copperhead, the Moccasin and the Harlequin—Interesting Description of Each.

The natural history of our serpents is not as well understood by the people as it should be. There seems to be a deep-seated repugnance among all classes of persons toward a snake, and many people not otherwise destitute of courage, stand in mortal fear of these reptiles. This is, in a manner, difficult to be accounted for, when it is considered that the great majority of our serpents are harmless and retreat upon the approach of mankind.

In geological history the serpents occupy but little space, they being comparatively a modern creation, for during the culmination of the Reptilian Age they had not yet come in to existence and but few species of fossil serpents are known, and these are furnished by the more recent rocks, the Tertiary. This class of reptiles seems to have culminated during the age of man, to whose agency they will doubtless owe their final extinction.

There are said to be something like 400 species of snakes known to our naturalists, and perhaps not more than 100 species are natives of the United States. Some species vary so widely in different localities and seasons of the year that it is quite probable that this list is too long. A snake that has just cast aside his old, faded, worn and rusty skin, and come out in a brand-new suit, will hardly be recognized except by an expert, as the same old snake. There are a dozen species of "garter" snakes, a dozen or more of water snakes, besides black snakes and those of green, red or other hues, and quite as harmless as they are prettily colored.

There are but two families of venomous serpents in the United States—the Crotalidæ, in which are the rattlesnakes, copperheads and the moccasins; the Elapidæ, in which are the harlequin snakes of the Gulf states. Of the Crotalidæ, the rattlesnakes are the largest, best known and most widely diffused species, being found from Maine to Florida. They vary greatly in color, from nearly black to pale yellow, with ashy gray bands. There may be, possibly, among so many varieties, several species, the timber rattlesnake, Crotalus horridus, and the prairie rattlesnake, Crotalophorus tergeminus.

The horridus is very slow and deliberate in his movements, showing a preference for rocky, timber-covered bluffs, or hills bordering swamps. His digestion is so slow that perhaps he does not often seek food. They probably live to a great age and grow very robust, although one is seldom seen more than five or six feet in length. It is not common to find a rattlesnake with more than a dozen rattles, although we have seen one with seventeen and heard from good authority of another with twenty, yet the largest skins seen of this snake had not so many of the alarm appendages. Possibly they may lose some, but it is probable that on arriving at full maturity the rattles cease to form.

Men and animals having once heard the shrill notes of this serpent's alarm, seem never to forget it. The writer has stood near and watched the manner in which it is sounded. The tail is slightly elevated, and there is only a perceptible tremulous motion of the muscles, and the sound commencement is so sharp and clear that the intruder had better leave the neighborhood. Apparently, the rattles are not sounded, unless the snake itself is alarmed. We have passed near them when they remained silent.

One warm bright day during the spring of the last year, the writer discovered a large rattlesnake lying at the foot of a ledge of rock on the bluff of the Mississippi, a few miles above Alton. He probably was enjoying a sun bath after his long winter's seclusion in a hole under the ledge. My lads and I stood quite near him for several minutes, the boys wishing to hear him sound his rattles, which he did not seem inclined to do, but remained perfectly quiet until I went a little distance and cut a forked stick, which was placed over his neck, making him fast. The outrageous proceeding aroused him, however, and he made the welkin ring before we killed him.

This serpent had ten rattles, its fangs were nearly half an inch in length, and the poison sacks fairly distended with venom. One of the fangs being raised up out of its sheath the point slightly pressed ejected a drop of clear, colorless liquid. Some of the liquid on the point of a knife-blade being inserted in a wound made in the leg of a cat seemed to take immediate effect and the feline was dead in less than three hours. With all his terrible venom the rattlesnake does not seem to be a vicious or aggressive creature. One might more safely pass through a bushfield or grass cover containing a dozen rattlesnakes than one copperhead.

In this region the harridus has but one cousin, the prairie rattlesnake crotalophorus tergeminus.

This species is smaller and has a different arrangement of the large plates on the head. The rattles are black, while those of the large relative are a clear, light brown, or horn color. The triangular head, slim neck, ashy-gray bands and general appearance is much like that of the larger species. It is not so dangerous, partly from its much smaller size. They once abounded on the virgin prairies of Illinois. They used to be often seen while hunting prairie chickens. Cowhide boots were an ample protection, nor did we ever know a dog to suffer from their bite. Cattle were sometimes bitten, but seldom fatally. The bitten part became much swollen, forming an ugly, sloughing sore before recovery.

Rattlesnakes, together with their relatives, the copperheads and moccasins, have but two fangs, which are attached at the base to a poison sack, one on each side of the upper jaw. This sack rests partly on a small muscle by which the fang can be erected or sheathed at the side of the jaw. These fangs are independent of the small teeth which all serpents are provided and which are socketed in the jaw. As the fangs is simply a slightly covered and delicate tube, shaped like one end, it is sometimes broken. This is provided for in a supply of very minute incipient fangs about the poison sacks, one of which soon grows and takes the place of the lost fang. We have a fine specimen of the horridus that has three fangs, two being attached to one poison sack.

Those venomous serpents with the power of erecting the fangs, unlike most other snakes, do not lay their eggs, which are retained in an ovaduct, whence the young are born. The Crotalidæ have but few young, as compared with the oviparous serpents that lay their eggs.

In one large rattler we dissected there were but four eggs, in another six, in still another there were five almost ready to be born, there being a fissure or rupture in the skin-like covering of the eggs. These young, upon being liberated, seemed full of life and immediately began to crawl away. The tail was already provided with a button and single rattle, and although the fangs were not yet grown, in actions and appearance they were diminutive duplicates of the parent. We know an instance of a rattlesnake being chopped in twain with a sharp hoe, and the young, being liberated from the ovaduct, attempted to move away. This peculiarity of the ovaviperous serpent has probably given rise to some of the stories of snakes swallowing their young.

The copperhead (Anacistrodon contortrix) is, without doubt, the most dangerous of our venomous serpents. It very much resembles the rattlesnake in general appearance, having somewhat similar ashy gray bands or blotches on a dark background that varies greatly in color in individuals. In place of rattles it has a rather slim, pointed tail. Its neck is small and the plates on top of the rather broad triangular head are of a peculiar reddish color, like that of polished, but tarnished, copper, whence its name.

Contrary to the general belief, the copperhead is a comparatively rare reptile. Indeed, many collectors, especially in the Northern and Middle states, have been unable to secure a specimen. Above the mouth of the Illinois river in the Mississippi valley they are rarely seen. They are more plentiful in Southeast Missouri and Arkansas. We have not been able to

SALEM IS GROWING

More rapidly than any other city of its size upon the Pacific Coast.

Three million brick will be used in building in Salem the present year.

Eighteen magnificent new brick store rooms, having a frontage of nearly four hundred feet, are now in process of construction. An extensive ice factory has already been constructed. An immense woolen mill will be completed before the end of the season. A forty thousand collar box factory is to be built. From present appearances nearly two hundred dwelling houses will have been erected here during the year. Work will soon begin upon the State Reform School, and immense sums of money are to be spent upon the other State buildings. Nearly four miles of street railway has been built in Salem within the past six months. Various other extensive improvements, involving the expenditure of large sums of money, are contemplated. Salem has the finest mills upon the Coast. Salem has immense water power and expensive manufactories, employing large numbers of hands. Salem has electric lights, street cars, telephones, gas, extensive water works, and all modern conveniences. Salem has thirteen churches, and the oldest and best institutions of learning upon the Pacific Coast. Salem is famed as a city of churches and schools.

Salem is on the line of the great Southern Pacific Railway, and will shortly be connected with another great transcontinental railway. Two or three local lines are also contemplated. Salem has a free outlet to the sea by water, and has no fear of ever suffering extortion at the hands of the transportation companies.

Polk and Marion counties, the two richest counties in the Willamette Valley, which is famed for its fertility the world over, are both tributary to Salem, being connected at this point by a new free bridge, erected at an expense of $50,000. This is the very center of the richest part of the richest valley on the Pacific Coast.

Salem has an advantage over other State Capitals from the fact that, under the requirements of the Constitution, the State Insane Asylum, State Penitentiary, Blind School, Deaf and Dumb School and other public institutions, are located here. Salem is universally admitted to be the most beautiful and healthy city on the Pacific Coast.

According to a census, completed by the clerk of the school district, in March, 1889, Salem showed an increase of over 25 per cent for the year. According to this census, the present population is about 11,000, of which nearly 3000 have been added within the past year. At the same rate of increase, her population will be over 30,000 within the next five years. She is now increasing more rapidly than ever before.

Salem is wide awake and progressive and is to-day spending more money to advertise and develop her resources than any other city of twice her size west of the Rocky Mountains.

Salem is surrounded upon all sides by the finest fruit, stock and grain lands in the world. Good fruit lands in California sell readily at $1000 per acre. Far better fruit lands near Salem, where no irrigation is ever required, can be bought at from $30 to $100 per acre.

No other locality upon the face of the globe offers greater inducements to the investor or homeseeker.

Property is cheap, but is rapidly enhancing in value.

Parties who wish to learn more in regard to this favored locality can secure illustrated descriptive pamphlets free upon application to President of the Board of Trade of Salem, Oregon.

WASTED, A NEW POSTOFFICE

The Present Building Is Not Worthy a Town of Portland's Size.

Postmaster Roby Writes a History of the Office to Fill It Standing Back Forty Years—Interesting Facts and Figures.

A complete history of the Portland postoffice has just been published by Postmaster Roby. It forms a handsome book of some eighty-five pages, containing carefully-prepared tables, showing the growth and progress of the postal business in this locality, and also a number of illustrations and a valuable collection of postal information.

In his introduction, Mr. Roby pays his compliments to the government and his employes as follows:

"It is proper to add that of all departments of the government, none impose such long hours of service and severe labor, and none pays its employes such niggardly salaries. At no time since the charge of this office, in the fall of 1885, have we had a sufficient allowance for clerks; and if there have been some mistakes and unnecessary delays, they are chargeable, under which we should go a long way in mitigation. I think, however, I am safe in saying that this office has never had a more efficient corps of subordinates and clerks than it has at the present time. At the window of each division the public receive prompt and courteous attention, and mistakes are reduced to something near a minimum. I do not say this boastfully but in justice to faithful and pains-taking employes.

"A great drawback to the work of this postoffice is the lack of room. The force have been added to as the wants of the service required, until nearly every department, but there is now available only half the room needed for mailing purposes. The office was arranged at first to accommodate a population of 10,000 to 15,000. With these limits the number of lock boxes, and probability that the present population will double in a few years, the need of more room is evident. Portland has long since outgrown its babyhood and has now assumed metropolitan proportions. The gross receipts of its postoffice have exceeded and passed $100,000 per annum, and during the next few years will far exceed this sum. Since November, 1885, the number of its clerks has been increased from seven to fifteen.

"The present Federal building is arranged offers no facilities for a large postoffice, and nothing short of a radical remodeling of it can give anything approaching a convenient arrangement, and even with the whole of the first floor postoffice purposes, there would not be sufficient floor space. When a new government building is secured for Portland it should be assigned for postoffice purposes and arranged especially for such."

An interesting epitome of the history of Portland follows in the collection, illustrated with pictures of the first house in Portland, erected at Front and Washington streets in 1844; Willamette Falls, High school building, view on Front street, &c.

ESTABLISHMENT AND LOCATION.

A United States postoffice was officially established at Portland November 8, 1849, and Thomas Bolin was at the same time appointed postmaster.

The building occupied "the southwest corner of First and Washington streets. The office remained here until 1852, when it was located in a store on the northeast corner of First and Taylor streets, with Edwin B. Comfort as postmaster. In 1853, Gen. John C. Waterman was appointed postmaster, and removed the postoffice to a store on the southeast corner of Front and Stark streets, on the site of the present OREGONIAN building. In October of the same year, Alonzo Leland succeeded Waterman as postmaster, but the office remained at the same place until November, 1854, when Adam Shiping, the newly appointed postmaster, removed it to the store then located at the northeast corner of Front and Washington streets. Here it remained for about a year, when it was moved to the present site of the Oregon Hotel, at the northeast corner of First and Morrison streets. The office was soon after located in a store on the west side of Front street, between Washington and Stark, where it remained until the spring of 1856. It then moved up Front street midway between Alder and Washington streets, where it remained until the close of Mr. Shiping's term in 1861. Herman W. Davis was appointed July 16, 1861. The postoffice during Mr. Davis's term of office was located at 108 Front street. E. G. Randall succeeded Mr. Davis in July, 1865, and moved the postoffice to the southwest corner of First and Alder streets, at present occupied by A. Roberts' clothing house. J. B. Trindle was acting postmaster for a time after Randall retired. During most of Trindle's incumbency the office was at 98 First street, one door from Alder. L. H. Wakefield was the next commissioned postmaster. During the time he was in the office was located at 99 First street, thence it was moved to 106 First street, two doors from Alder, where it remained until June, 1876, when it was moved into the new Masonic temple, corner Third and Alder streets. Here it remained until October 1, 1875, when it was moved to its present quarters in the government building.

The brig Sequin, owned by her captain, Z. C. Norton, left Bath, Me., in 1848, loaded with lumber and bound for Rio de Janeiro. Having disposed of his cargo, Captain Norton set sail for San Francisco, which place was reached in September 1849. From there information had this ship, in command of Captain Norton, brought the first regularly authorized United States mail from San Francisco, reaching Portland, January 20, 1850. Postoffices had been established in November of the previous year, but for want of transportation a large quantity of mail matter accumulated at San Francisco.

LIST OF POSTMASTERS COMMISSIONED.

Postmaster	When Appointed
Thomas Smith	Nov. 8, 1849
Edwin B. Comfort	Aug. 21, 1850
John C. Waterman	June 21, 1853
Alonzo Leland	Oct. 12, 1853
Adam Shipley	Nov. 4, 1854
Herman W. Davis	July 16, 1861
E. G. Randall	July 7, 1866
J. B. Wakefield	Feb. 1, 1869
Thomas R. Cole	March 11, 1878
Joseph H. Buel	Oct. 21, 1881
Thomas Smith	Dec. 1, 1885

The present roster of the postoffice employes is as follows: By a number of tables, the compilation of which has involved a great deal of labor and searching among musty records, the following shows the gradual increase of business done:

GROSS RECEIPTS FOR THE FISCAL YEARS ENDING JUNE 30.

$	89 98	1870
1,474	75	1871
1,853	76	1872
975	34	1873
1,004	60	1874
792	78	1875
1,724	92	1876
2,725	52	1877
3,236	51	1878
3,848	80	1879
5,008	99	1880
3,777	91	1881
3,315	07	1882
3,729	63	1883
3,920	09	1884
4,128	93	1885
6,183	72	1886
10,520	39	1887
10,572	22	1888
12,896	59

The gross receipts for year ending March 31st were $13,990 48.

RAPID GROWTH OF BUSINESS.

It will be seen by the above, no matter what period of time are covered by computations substantially the same results are reached, showing a rapid growth of business in the past, nothing indicating a boom, simply a healthy rather rapid growth. By reference to the tables it is found that gross receipts from sales of stamps, envelopes, &c., for several periods, as follows:

Quarter ending June 30, 1886	$ 65,907 12
Quarter ending June 30, 1888	91,584 35
Quarter ending March 31, 1888	99,557 53
Quarter ending March 31, 1889	103,990 48

Here is an increase of nearly 60 per cent in something less than four years, or about 15 per cent. each year. It is, I think, a fact conceded that there is no better criterion of the increase of population and the business done by a community, than that indicated by comparison with the business of its postoffice. It is evident that the increase of every thousand here means an increase of many thousands in the general business of the city. It is true that if we apply this rule to Portland's business we have an enormous increase, but no greater than the most accurate reports and actual observation will justify. Apply this gauge to the population and we have as follows:

Population in 1885	34,050
Add 60 per cent, increase in four years	20,970
Gives present population	55,020

Or nearly the exact average of the estimates given in the table of population on page twelve; hence we think it may be stated, with a reasonable degree of accuracy that like the receipts of the postoffice, the population and business of Portland have increased about 60 per cent. within the past four years.

The net increase to the government from the Portland postoffice has been as follows:

For the year ended June 30, 1886	$45,551 09
For the year ended December 31, 1888	71,463 43
For the year ended March 31, 1889	74,009 15

Here is an increase in the net revenue to the government of $28,457.58 or about 60 per cent. in less than four years. The per cent. of expense for running the office has at no time exceeded 32 during the past four years, and for the year ending March 31, 1889 it was about 28 per cent., that is to say 72 per cent. of all the receipts of the office last year or $74,009.85 was clear profit to the government and went to swell that troublesome surplus. It is well-known

THAT THERE IS A LARGE DEFICIENCY

Sustained in conducting the entire postal business of the country. With the exception of a single year this deficiency has been several millions annually; but if all the postoffices of the country were as profitable to the government as the Portland office it would be difficult to figure out much of a deficiency. If we refer to the record of other offices whose gross receipts are similar to ours we will find that their running expenses are in many cases double that of ours. The Jersey City office, for instance, uses 64 per cent. of its gross receipts; Troy, N. Y., 49; Charleston, S. C., 40, and Oakland, California, 42. The average, as stated, was 28, and only one in the entire list, that of Topeka, Kas., has as low per cent. as the Portland office. From this it is plain that our office is one of the best paying offices to the government, that the country affords. Where it once better, and I doubt if it ever will be. Within the past four years we have seen the office increase its net income to the government 62 per cent., but during the same period the increase in the allowance for clerk hire for this office has been but little more than 19 per cent. We have not asked for nor expected any special consideration, but we had a right to expect that an office which stands among the first in returning profits to the government, would meet with just and fair treatment. At no time during the past three years have we had a proper allowance for clerical help and there has certainly been no lack of effort on my part to secure it.

Frequent and full representation of our needs have been made and my applications have been endorsed and urged by the department's own inspectors, as well as by our representatives in congress, but all to little purpose. We were granted a part of what we asked for last year, but not a sufficient allowance. The trouble seems to lie in the fact that the making of these allowances is left to subordinates at the department, who often assume to know more of the needs and requirements of the different postoffices of the country than postmasters and inspectors who are on the ground and are supposed to know the needs of the office."

The book, in addition to statistics, contains a lot of valuable information in regard to the money order system, and a decision by Attorney-General Williams on the legal status of the money order, a Portland postoffice directory, and much other interesting and valuable matter.

BRIEF PERSONALS.

Bill Nye has gone to Paris. He will "do" the exposition and attempt to interview Queen Victoria when he goes to London.

George Westinghouse, jr., of Pittsburg, is to be created with the largest individual contribution—$15,000—yet made for the Johnstown sufferers.

Five hundred women in Tokio and Yokohama have subscribed to a fund for the purchase of a handsome Bible to be presented to the empress of Japan.

Ben Butler's memory, despite his years, is said to be wonderful. He can call instantly to mind anything he has ever read or heard and is seldom at a loss for a name or date.

Walt Whitman threatens to write some more "poetry." This is one of the sad results of the tonic administered to the vain old man by the recent gushing celebration of his birthday.

Dr. Minor, of Cincinnati, is busy upon a book which will be a compendium of all the bad things said about doctors in all lands and all ages. It is expected to be the largest book ever printed.

James Jackson, who was a candidate for the office of district attorney of the northern district of Alabama, has gone crazy because of his failure to obtain the place.

Quite an interesting dispute has arisen among learned people up in the Sioux language whether the title recently conferred upon the Maumee chief signifies "Young-Man-Proud-of-His-Tail," or "Brave-Whose-Jaw-Shoots-Far."

Dr. Just. of Coral, Mich., uses daily in his practice a horse which is claimed to be 46 years old, and is apparently good for twenty more. It is likely the figures in this case are just a little stretched.

Richard Chandler, a wealthy resident of Irving, Wis., suffers from a peculiar affliction. His mouth is growing together. Unfortunately, there is no likelihood of the disease extending among politicians and office-seekers.

Vice-President Morton is at his beautiful summer residence on the Hudson, but he and his family will soon go to Newport for the season. What a nice, jolly and comfortable thing it is to be vice president instead of president!

The Rev. David A. Day, missionary of the Baltimore Women's Home and Missionary Society, near Monrovia, Liberia, says in his last letter that he saw on a single Sunday one missionary and 50,000 casks of gin landed on the African coast.

An Unfortunate Parent.

"I will ask you to state," said the lawyer, "whether you have any other children than this young man now on trial for stealing?"

"Your honor," exclaimed the witness, appealing to the judge, "do I have to answer that question?"

"I see no reason why you should not," answered the judge. "You may answer it."

"I have one other child, but I had hoped it would not be necessary to speak of her. She turned out badly," faltered the witness. "She married an English nobleman."

JUDICIAL SIFTINGS.

An Important Case on Trial in the U. S. Circuit Court.

Schneider Denied a Continuance—Will Filed in Probate—More New Citizens—A Brief Docket.

The case of Goldsmith et al. vs. M. B. Holmes, John Dillard and R. Phipps, was on trial in the United States circuit court yesterday. This is another of the cases growing out of the failure of Flem Owens, of Douglas county. A number of witnesses, among them several ladies, were in attendance. The case, like others of the same nature tried before, depends upon whether the signatures to a bond are genuine or forgeries, and as they were procured by Mr. O'Neil, or forged by him, and he is dead, experts in handwriting are among the most important witnesses.

MRS. WHEAT'S WILL FILED.

The will of the late Mrs. Sophie R. Wheat who recently died at the Grand hotel in Spokane Falls has been filed for probate in the county court. After making provisions for the disposal of her body the document reads:

"Having received whatever property I possess through the exertions and the loving care of my husband, and having the utmost faith that he will provide for our son, Palmer Wheat, as an affectionate father should, I give and devise to John R. Wheat, my loving devoted husband, all my property, of whatever nature.

"I hereby constitute my husband executor of my estate without bonds."

The estate consists of $9000 in notes, $25,000 in real estate and $1500 worth of paintings.

A CONTINUANCE DENIED.

Counsel for R. M. Schneider, indicted for a criminal assault upon a young daughter of Rev. J. Diedrich, yesterday morning moved for a continuance of his client's trial, setting forth that he desired to impeach Diedrich's testimony; and in order to do so it would be necessary to send to Germany for money to enable him to obtain depositions. The motion was denied, and Schneider goes to trial this morning.

NEW CITIZENS.

Edward Long, a subject of the queen of Great Britain; Albert Boutnor, of Germany; Joseph Canning, England; Alexander Wilson, same; John Alfred Carlson, Sweden; Jerome Quinteus, Belgium, and Charles A. Lindlopher, Norway, foreswore their allegiance to their different sovereigns yesterday to become citizens of the United States.

IN DREAD OF DYING.

Dr. William Jones examined Andrew M. Burchard, a patient at St. Vincent's hospital, yesterday and declared him to be insane. The patient is 55 years of age and lives at Washougal, W.T. At times he is quite violent and imagines he has interviews with the Lord, and he is in dread of dying.

THE BABY HOME.

An Appeal for Aid for the Infant's Home in East Portland.

EAST PORTLAND, June 15.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

It has been very gratifying to my feelings to notice the hearty sympathy that has been evinced by the people of our state for the Johnstown and Seattle sufferers in their generous contributions of money, clothing and provisions. The hearty response to the call for help from these places of dire need proves the truth of the declaration so often made by strangers coming among us: "The people of Oregon are generous and warm-hearted, and no one need suffer here if they let their wants be known."

Now, at this time, when the generous impulses of the people are stirred to their depths in sympathy with the needs of our suffering brethren in Johnstown and Seattle, I desire to make an appeal in behalf of an institution in our very midst which is struggling for an existence. I refer to the Baby Home in East Portland. At present two Home shelters and cares for twenty-two children, eight of whom are infants from the ages of four weeks to three months. The remaining vary in age from 18 months to 7 years.

At a meeting of the board of directors on the evening of June 11 the superintendent reported the income from all sources to be $100 per month, while the expenditures for the same time reach $150. In addition, the Home is burdened with a debt incurred chiefly before it was incorporated. While the creditors are justly desirous for their money, in many instances giving a discount of one-half or more, yet the board is utterly unable to meet the payments.

At the meeting above referred to, Mrs. R. M. Robb was authorized to take the stock book and secure the taking of the remainder of the stock, also to secure funds in other ways she may deem proper to enable us to liquidate the outstanding debts and place the institution on a living basis.

An assessment cannot be levied until the full amount of the stock—$1000—is taken, as some of that already subscribed was taken with this promise. Let me urge those to whom Mrs. Robb applies for help in this line, not to turn her away with empty hands. The Baby Home is a necessity of the times. Our needs for its support are pressing. Let those who can take one or more shares of the stock ($10). Your smallest donation will be gratefully accepted. The home is new and meagerly furnished. Your gift can scarcely be amiss, as we need everything from a safety pin to a bureau, and from a baby's bib to bed-clothes.

The institution is not a local one. We receive babies from all over the state, and from Washington as well. And now, as the hot weather is upon us, and some of the helpless and more than orphaned little ones are sick and suffering, we are extremely anxious to give them the benefits of the best foods and the best of care and nursing. To do this requires more means than we have been able thus far to command. Our superintendent is an efficient one, but for the small wages we are at present compelled to pay we are not always able to get a competent night nurse, and this is essentially important.

The beneficent All-Father, in furnishing the great human heart, reserved the warmest, sweetest, tenderest spot for the little ones. Out of this wondrous provision send forth a little warmth and sweetness to brighten the lives of the hapless little ones in the Baby Home, to whom has been denied the greatest boon of childhood, the sheltering care of loving parents.

MRS. S. M. KERN,
President Baby Home.

PORTLAND, TUESDAY, JUNE 18.

A SATISFACTORY RESULT.

The annual meetings of the stockholders of the Oregon & Transcontinental and the Oregon Railway & Navigation Companies, which took place yesterday, had been awaited with much interest, not only in Portland, but throughout the Northwest. The railway policy of the Northwest was understood to be deeply involved in the result of the O. R. & N. election, and in the course the managers of the O. & T. might decide to take in regard to their company's holdings of O. R. & N. stocks. On the general issues of the contest for possession of the O. R. & N. and for direction of its policy, THE OREGONIAN, speaking as it conceived in the interest of the country, has had a good deal to say during more than a year past. It has now to say that it is quite satisfied with the results that have been reached. Though there was a compromise between the parties directly interested and not a clear victory on all points for either one, yet in fact for Portland, for Oregon and for the Northwest in general, the result is as satisfactory as could be desired. Looking at it purely from the standpoint of the public interest, we regard the result as a triumph for Portland and for the country at large.

We have a board of directors for the O. R. & N., whose names are an assurance that our interests will not be trafficked away, overlooked or disregarded. The resident directors are men thoroughly identified with the business of Portland and the interests of the country. Further, the O. & T. agrees to sell its holdings of O. R. & N. stock, and, as a consequence, the conditions that have produced so much disturbance in the past will now cease to exist. And finally, the roads north of Snake river, now under construction by the Washington & Idaho Company, upon their completion are to become a recognized part of the O. R. & N. system.

In the interest of Oregon we could not ask more. We shall not undertake a review of the long controversy, nor go over the many steps through which this result has been reached. It suffices that the result itself is good—better, indeed, than could have been foreseen or expected.

PIONEER DAY.

The annual reunion of Oregon pioneers under the auspices of the Pioneer Association, will take place in this city to-day. No pains have been spared to make the occasion a pleasant one to the grizzled veterans of early Oregon, who meet to compare the experiences and renew the friendships of a by-gone era. These men and women are drawn together by ties of which our more modern civilization does not dream; ties that were formed around lonely campfires in the wilderness; about solemn death beds in primitive cabin homes; by open graves made by the roadside and in homes where rude plenty and boundless hospitality dwelt together. There is abundant room for comparison between the Oregon of memory and the Oregon of the present; the one distant, dim and surrounded by the solitudes of the past; the other pressing upon the sight, full of activity, pulsing with life and energy. It is the difference between the wooded slopes and hights that marked the site of Portland and the paved streets, massive business blocks and elegant homes of the city to-day; between the emigrant's wagon, moved slowly by tired oxen, and the luxurious railway coaches, drawn by steam; between the dead face, calm and peaceful in its quiet beauty, and the living features, animated with life and flushed with hope. The one is a memory, the other a reality.

It is into the credit of the remaining few of the fast dwindling band of Oregon pioneers, that while they rejoice in the new they yet honor the old, and that as many of them as are privileged to do so, stand each year together, and, shutting out the sounds that tell of the prosperity of a busy, thriving city, bow their heads reverently while the band plays "Auld Lang Syne."

ALEXANDER SULLIVAN.

The arrest of Alexander Sullivan at Chicago calls out incidents of his career which show that he has had quite a varied experience. In the first place, he is a native born American. His parents came to Ontario in the British military service, where he was born. He went to Detroit in his youth, later was engaged in trade for himself and was burned out. He became conspicuous in the labor movements, and in 1868 took the stump for General Grant. He was a forcible speaker and many of his countrymen by birth utterly denounced him for his political tendencies. General Grant appointed him secretary of the territory of New Mexico. He established a republican paper at Santa Fe and became involved in several quarrels, and was shot at by General Heath. He next located in Chicago, where he followed journalism and was secretary of the board of public works.

About 1874 he married Margaret Buchanan, who was a prominent teacher in the public schools. In 1876 Francis Hanaford, principal of one of the public schools, wrote two letters that were made part of the report of the committee on schools, to which Mr. Sullivan took exception. He put his wife in a carriage and they drove to Hanaford's house, where a war of words led to blows, and ended in his shooting Hanaford, who died in half an hour. The letters written by Hanaford reflected bitterly on Mrs. Sullivan as "the instigator and engineer in chief of all the devilry connected with the legislation of the board of education." Other assertions were made of an unpleasant nature, but all the facts called out in the trials—for he was tried twice—resulted in his acquittal.

Since then he has been practicing law in Chicago and building up influence with secret societies; he became president of the new Land League, with which all Irish-American societies were consolidated. His connection with the Clan-na-Gael resulted in charges of having diverted the funds of that society, which were made by Dr. Cronin, and are laid at his door as a reason for the deadly hostility that ended in Cronin's death.

The latest feature of the Cronin case is a letter from Mrs. Alexander Sullivan, written from London, where she was visiting friends, asserting not merely confidence in his innocence, but her positive knowledge that he had no knowledge in Dr. Cronin's death. Mrs. Sullivan's word or belief may not have much direct influence in establishing her husband's innocence, but she owed this and much more to the man who staked his own life and success in assertion of her name when it was not seriously attacked, but merely aspersed, professionally, in connection with her career as a teacher of public schools.

Evidently Sullivan's case is complicated by a variety of causes, and prejudice is enlisted for and against him for political reasons as well as for his connection with secret associations supposed to be unscrupulous in pursuing their ends. The whole business shows the extreme to which such schemes and plots can be carried, and how utterly at variance they are with the principles of American freedom and true government. Whenever our own nation becomes so destitute of principle and lacking in loyalty as to be divided with factions and class that are bloody-minded and desperate, there will not be much left worth living for—scarce enough to fight worth fighting for.

"Father, how is it that Gordon is always place-ed?" "My son, Gordon is always elected because he is a good man."

AN EVENTFUL PRACTICAL MAN.

The recent publication in the New York Sun of the private correspondence of Horace Greeley from 1855 to 1859 ought to extinguish for ever the idea that Greeley was not an intensely practical man. The popular notion of Greeley is that he was a man of great powers as a writer, but a man of critical and pugnacious controversial genius rather than a man of practical managing talents as editor or politician. It is clear from these letters that Greeley was not only a great editorial writer but that his ideas of journalistic management were intensely practical. Raymond trained under Greeley, built up a great newspaper, but so did it under less difficult circumstances than Greeley. Whatever cause Greeley may have given to be called a "crank" because of private acts of benevolence and his unlimited big honesty, this correspondence makes it clear that in the management of the Tribune he was cool, sagacious, a keen and generally correct judge of public opinion, and a man utterly impatient of any poetic or pedantic nonsense in a newspaper. He treated the Tribune as a business undertaking, and he was conservative or aggressive to the extremity of bitterness, just as he thought his policy would affect the Tribune. In this correspondence with Dana Greeley's satire is constantly directed at William H. Fry, a writer of great powers of wit and ridicule, and for musical criticism which he was constantly indulging in at the expense of the Tribune. Greeley writes Dana concerning Fry's operatic essays and musical criticism, thus:

> You have crowded out what little Field sent to make room for Fry's eleven columns of arguments as to the feasibility of sustaining the opera in New York, if they would only pay his compositions. I don't believe 300 people who take the Tribune care one chew of tobacco for the matter. What would it cost to burn the opera house? If the price is reasonable, have it done and send me the bill.

I begin this letter to apologize for taking up three or four columns with a controversy with Dick Thompson, which I shall send you to-day probably by Adams's express. Considering, however, those XIX columns of Coroner Fry's inquest on the putrefying opera, I won't apologize.

While dealing with Fry and his "opera rubbish" Greeley did not spare the rest of his staff from Dana down. We quote:

> I have labored many years to give the Tribune a reputation for candor and generosity toward unpopular creeds and races; and Stewart will use this up if you will let him. If isn't one article on the Jews; he is always shearing them, and this is not like the Tribune. I consider even Stewart's anti-Irish articles, though partly true, impelled by a bad spirit, and calculated to make us needless enemies. Let us try to cultivate a generous spirit in all things. Hildreth is a good writer, but he is essentially a Timothy Pickering federalist of fifty or sixty years ago, and is always fighting the battles of that class of well-meaning, but shockingly maladroit politicians, who hate slavery mainly because the South turned out old John Adams. You must gradually teach him to let the dead bury, etc.

Then Greeley scolds Dana for his lack of judgment for writing with too much truculence concerning the South. He says:

> I charge you above all things not to allow anything to get in which seems impelled by hatred of the South, or a desire to humiliate that section. On the contrary, ours is the course to renovate and exalt the South, and must be so commended. Every copy of that misjudged editorial showing how a British army might liberate the slaves and overrun the South, has been carefully treasured to make Loco Foco speeches on in the coming canvass.

This article on British invasion, pointing out the ways and means of overrunning the South, rousing and arming the slaves, is calculated to induce the stoppage of our mails—a far more serious matter. Subscribers may please themselves, but we cannot afford to have an edition taken from the mails and burnt on a true charge of plotting treason and inciting insurrection. That article was calculated to excite intense aversion to us at the South, and is good nowhere. It implied that we foment abolition as a means of weakening and destroying the South—as a means of regenerating and upbuilding it. Of course we can't have no friends in the South if we seem to invoke upon that region the scourges of fire and sword. And again, by seeking to prove the South at the mercy of Great Britain, we virtually challenge all the Hotspurs of that region to vie with our B'hoys in provoking a war. You do not want war with England, and I abhor the thought of it; yet that article was strongly calculated to foment one. Do let us make the Southrons see that we desire abolition, not because they opposed the two Adamses, particularly old John—not for their injury, but for their good.

Of course I don't believe one word in the insurrection programme. Invasion always arouses intense hostility, especially among the lowest strata of society. I believe Lovejoy could volunteer to fight against an invading force to every one who would flee to their camp.

Greeley's judgment was sound on this point of invasion, for the slaves not only fought under Jackson in 1815 at New Orleans, but even in our civil war there was no attempt at insurrection.

In another letter he humorously asks: "If we pick a quarrel with all opponents personally, what chance have we for news? You remember the grand vizier who knocked in the head the sultan's proposal to exterminate the infidel dogs, with this sagacious demur, 'if we kill all the rajahs what shall we do for the capitation tax?'"

Greeley doesn't want any personal warfare on Fillmore. "Let the dead rest; never waste shot on those who have already committed suicide. We might make Fillmore a candidate and resuscitate Lew Campbell. But it were better to leave them to their long repose." One of the hottest shots is Greeley's note to Dana, saying:

> Your friend Judge Shankland, general of the Kansas volunteers, has notified me that he shall cowhide me (for rudeness in refusing to be further bored by him) the first time he catches me in public. Now, I am a little of a coward, and never had any taste for being cowhided, cowhid, or cowhiden, or whatever the past participle of the active verb used by General Shankland may be, but he is short of funds, and I could not think of putting him to the trouble of chasing me all over the country, so I shall stay here for the present. I trust the man of whom he buys the cowhide will know him well enough not to sell it on 4-tick. I prefer to be the only sufferer by the application.

These remarkable letters show Greeley to have been a very vigilant, cautious, conservative man in his care of the Tribune. He had no bees in his bonnet that he would suffer to buzz if it menaced the welfare of the Tribune. It is plain that it was Greeley and not McElrath that made the Tribune, for he writes Dana contemptuously:

> No Jew ever managed a pawnbroker's shop in a baser, narrower, more short-sighted spirit than the Tribune is managed, and I am heartsick. Mac is an excellent business man in a certain style, but, if he had his way the Tribune would have been just half way between the Commercial and Mirror in circulation, character and profits. We really cannot afford to be ruled by this spirit.

Greeley visits Kansas in 1859 and writes Dana: "It is cursed by all manner of political half-breeds and twaddlers who are likely to ruin it. Rain—mud; most profound, flooded rivers and streams—glorious soil—worthless politicians—lazy people—such is Kansas in a nutshell."

It is clear from these remarkable letters that Greeley was a witty man, and an excellent editorial manager; that in politics, so far from being an idealist or "crank," he was realistic, shrewd and skeptical, to the point of habitual cynicism. As a practical politician, it was his energy and skill that prevented the nomination of Seward at Chicago. He was a benevolent man, but his benevolence was blended with the powerful common sense and vigorous understanding of Dr. Johnson, not tainted with the sentimentalism of Victor Hugo. He dabbled a little in socialism in his youth, but soon dropped it. Take him all in all, he was oftener right in his off hand opinion than any man of his time; his mind was as practical as that of Franklin, but he had not Franklin's bland, diplomatic temper.

The statement that the Western farmer wastes more than the New England farmer needs to live upon is substantiated by the fact that the savings banks of New Hampshire have $22,500,000 invested in loans in the West. The St. Paul Globe says: "It is a puzzle how they can ever get so much money together in that sterile state, where rocks are used to prop up the roots of things." This puzzling feature is certainly not diminished by the fact that, having scraped it together, they find borrowers for it in the residents on the most productive lands on the continent. Nothing but New England "faculty" in the line of economy can explain how it is that the frugal dwellers of the New Hampshire mountains can secure mortgages upon the broad and fertile prairies of the great Western world. "Thrift" is the magic word that explains it all, and the real conditions that it imposes are as thoroughly unknown to the dweller of the equally busy, but more prodigal West as the shifts and makeshifts of the poor are to the rich. It is the result both of inheritance and training and cannot be acquired in a single generation.

HENRY GEORGE IN EUROPE.

The attention which Henry George is receiving in France, exemplifies again the assertion that a prophet is not without honor, save in his own country. We are told that he has won a decided victory over the socialists, and done much to popularize the "single tax idea" there and elsewhere in the Old World. For awhile after the publication of his famous book, "Progress and Poverty," he was the recipient of much attention from the press, and indeed succeeded in invading the domain of politics with an astonishing show of force. But the sensation that the first presentation of his doctrines created speedily died away—so speedily indeed that, although he made an astonishing contest for the mayoralty of New York city one year, his name has not since been mentioned seriously as representing a political idea of any force, and he is viewed mainly as an educated crank, whose theories, though carefully elaborated, will not stand the test of practical conditions.

But the estimation in which he is held across the water seems to be of an entirely different character. His progress through Great Britain was attended by a show, at least, of triumph. The press, both of England and Scotland, regard him as the most popular man who has appeared upon the English platform during this generation. He was welcomed to Dundee with great formality. The trades council of that city addressed him in terms of the warmest eulogy, and characterized his system as one "radiant with hope for the masses, and which it was impossible to call unjust to the classes."

From all of this and much more in the same strain, it is evident that George has found a more responsive field for his labors among the oppressed of the old world, than the present condition of the working classes in the new furnished him.

John Gilbert, the celebrated actor, who died yesterday in Boston, leaves behind him the reputation of having been the finest "Sir Anthony Absolute" and "Sir Peter Teazle" that ever trod the American stage. With his death there is nobody left of the splendid school of dramatic artists to which he belonged, save Joe Jefferson. The Wallacks, Warren, John Owens, Placide, John Broughams, Wm. Blake, George Holland, James H. Hackett, Laura Keene, Mrs. John Wood, Mrs. Hoey, Mary Gannon—all are in their graves, except a few that are retired from the stage to private life, never again to delight the public. With death or retirement of this fine school of actors, the American stage will have little left but the burlesque artists who seem to be all the rage at present—creatures of the Dixey and Nat Goodwin kind of talent; fellows about one remove from the low comedy of the negro minstrel stage.

Six bodies were recovered from the Johnstown wreck, and buried without identification Sunday. The frenzied protest of the survivors, whose relatives were among the missing, against burning the debris, some days ago, has ceased, and in obedience to the unrelenting decree of the inevitable the mass was saturated with oil and ignited, after these last putrid bodies were hurried out of sight, unrecognized. Human affection never made a more pitiful, and at the same time more futile, protest against a stern decree of calamity than was witnessed in this instance, and the dumb acquiescence is even more pathetic than the passionate resistance to the first proposition to burn the bodies of the victims that were imprisoned in the wreck of their homes.

The Prisoners' Aid Society, of London, is nothing if not a philanthropic organization. Is lately sent over an invoice of ten ex-convicts, with instructions to begin life anew in this country. Our cold-blooded immigration commission did not enter into the spirit of philanthropic endeavor that was necessary to insure the success of the scheme and the consignment was promptly sent back from New York. Our English friends should read American newspapers. They will find from such perusal that our supply of toughs and paupers is reasonably complete without any special endeavor on their part to increase it, and save themselves the mortification and exposure of having their surplus stock thrown back upon their hands.

The public was informed through an Associated Press dispatch yesterday that John L. Sullivan had "made a night of it" in a barroom, actually drinking whisky enough to befuddle his massive brain. In other words, the renowned pugilist had "got drunk." Having seldom heard from him in any other condition, a stolid public probably does not feel either surprise or concern in this event. As a piece of news, however, it would doubtless take an interest in the statement that he was sober, and if to this we added authentic information that he had behaved for once like a decent, orderly citizen, surprise would no doubt be manifested.

Colored theologians in South Carolina have chosen the heated term for a red hot controversy over the proper mode of administering the rite of baptism. It is proposed to settle the question according to majority rule, the weaker party to adopt the method prescribed by the stronger. As there is not much prospect of an element of saving grace in the ordinance under such circumstances, it may be hoped that the immersionists will prove to be in the majority, as the sanitary effect might be beneficial, taking all things into consideration.

It has been the policy of Mr. Elijah Smith as president of the O. R. & N., to urge construction of branches and extensions of the company's railway system. The result of yesterday vindicates and supports this policy. Mr. Smith has contended for the autonomy of the O. R. & N., and this has been achieved and secured. It has been a long struggle, but the result is a substantial victory for the property and for the country which looks to this railroad for an independent and efficient service.

By reference to Saturday's OREGONIAN, it will be seen that the Albatross has devoted itself to the examination of the waters of our Oregon coast and of the Columbia. It is shown that the pure halibut has been caught in our Oregon waters, but the true cod has never been taken on this coast south of the Aleutian islands.

The agreement that the great block of O. R. & N. stock held by the Oregon & Transcontinental shall be sold, is the first step in the greatest one towards winding up the affairs of the Oregon & Transcontinental. At all events it is a matter of congratulation that that corporation is to be shaken out of Oregon.

FIVE ACRE LOTS

Cheap and easy terms, in Albina Park. Newhurst Park one of the best chances for small tracts near the Columbia county to-day. Prices will always pay, and are now crying out for good settlers. The young man taking the axe, clearing and planting Fresh Pond potatoes can in a very short time make a home from a small tract. Newhurst is near the city of Albina, and with the proposed extension of Mount Tabor motor line will be run through the north line of it, which brings it within reach of the city. Land west of Mount Tabor is not considered able for fruit. Good water, rich soil, good soil and plenty of wood. Newhurst Park owners, and you can live, if necessary, and attend to your business in the city. Remember, from to-day land in Newhurst Park will be worth $200 per acre. Come back, young man, and see the change you have missed and say how too late. For maps and particulars apply to GEO. L. STORY, 11 Sherlock building.

To the Creditors of the Oregonian Land & Dairy, Limited, in Liquidation.

Notice is hereby given that by an order of the 24th of May, 1889, pronounced by Leonard Cronise, ordinary on the 25th of May, 1889, the above named company, his lordship fixed the 15th day of July, 1889, on or before which the creditors of said company are to prove their claims, with certification that those who fail to do so will be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before such debts are proved.

All persons therefore claiming to be creditors of said company must lodge their proofs of claim or debt with the subscriber at his office in Portland, in form street, Dundee, on or before the 15th day of July, 1889, and under the certification above mentioned.

PIONEER REMINISCENSES.

...The Oregon Alpine Club Addressed by Dr. W. C. McKay and Donald McKay.

...The Oregon Alpine Club last night had the pleasure of listening to two very interesting addresses by Dr. W. C. McKay, of Pendleton, and Donald McKay, the pioneer Indian-war scout.

...The rooms were filled at an early hour, and when the meeting was called to order by the president, D. P. Thompson, every chair was occupied. More chairs were brought and placed in the ante-room and hall, but still a few were obliged to stand up. Among the audience were noticed a large number of old pioneers, who received an invitation to attend, while holding their annual encampment meeting in the afternoon. Another interesting feature of the meeting was a fair representation of ladies.

...Dr. McKay spoke of the early settlement of Oregon and the Pacific northwest, and related many of his experiences in those pioneer days.

...Donald McKay, who for a number of years was in the employ of the United States government as Indian war scout, devoted his remarks principally to his experience with the Indians. He told of his relations with the Indians from the earliest settlement in 1853 to the close of the Modoc war, adding much that he was necessarily the cause of. General Stevens, Major Haller and Lieutenant Wright. Both addresses were very interesting, and listened to with close attention by the audience.

"MIGHTY LONDON" ILLUSTRATED.

...Mr. C. H. Bolton made his first appearance at the Chemeketa in his magnificently illustrated lecture on "Mighty London" last night. Every reserved seat was taken, and about quarter to 8 o'clock, when the panorama was opened to view, a few minutes after the people left their cares behind them, and, stepping aboard the steamer at New York, they were on their way to the Atlantic in fancy's car. Officers with bronzed faces commanded the vessel, sailors were heard and ice-bergs and whales seen. After landing at Liverpool, the "Mad Irishman," a train running at the rate of 60 miles an hour, makes a quick journey to London. Mr. Bolton's views of London are unsurpassed for accuracy and coloring, and, with pleasant manner of describing and explaining the paintings, he made the lecture truly realistic. The audience was treated to a view of the crowded Billingsgate fishing market, to the magnificent buildings with 1100 rooms, on the Thames bridges, the tower of London, the bank of England, and St. Paul's church. The children were shown Jumbo as he used to be in Hyde Park, and many other views of objects equally by young and old were exhibited.

...These illustrated lectures will continue for three nights. This evening "The Top of the Globe," or "Lands of the Midnight Sun," a resume of 100 polar expeditions, will be the subject.

PORTLAND AND VICINITY.

...REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.—Watson, Smith & Co., at No. 4 Stark street, advise all persons to buy before it is too late, and not wait as did a gentleman who called at their office yesterday morning to close a sale for five acres of land that the first-named listed last week, only to find it sold, and who now, in his disappointment, is biting his lips and is running around among the other real estate offices in the hope of finding another piece of property that he can buy as cheap. They advise everybody to call on them and secure one of their cheap lots in some one of the many additions to Portland, East Portland, Albina or Sellwood, as they will not be able to offer any such an opportunity to buyers thirty days hence. Motor lines are just now being extended in every direction, the latest assured being the one over the high elevation north of Albina. They have lots in the Albina addition varying in price all the way from $300 to $950 per lot, and on easy terms.

...A HORSE STOLEN.—On June 8 a man hired a saddle-horse from Goddard & Frazier, livery stable keepers, saying that he was going to Oregon City and would be gone two days, but he has not since been seen. He is described as being about 45 years of age, five feet nine inches tall, and speaks with a German accent. The horse, which was a bay, weighing about 950 pounds, has a lump just back of the shoulder about the size of a hen egg.

...EXAMINATIONS TO BE HELD.—Examinations for admission to the Freshman class in Yale college and also to fill vacancies in the school, will be held at the rooms of the Bishop Scott academy, in this city, at the same time as in New Haven, beginning on Thursday, June 27, at 9 A. M. Anyone wishing to enter for these examinations, should report in person or by letter, to W. W. Hill, principal of the Bishop Scott academy.

...WHOSE LOCATION.—In referring to the Portland Laundry Company in Sunday's issue location of their laundry was given as at the corner of Sixteenth and Twenty-first streets. Portland cannot yet boast of a laundry that spreads over five blocks of territory, and the city will probably not enjoy this distinction for a number of years hence. The location of the Portland is at the corner of Sixteenth and Q streets.

...THE STANDARDS' NEW PITCHER.—Manager Jack Letcher, of the Standards, has strengthened his nine by engaging the services of H. Parrot as pitcher. Mr. Parrott, who is lately of the Denver team, has played in league games in the East, and he is said to be a twirler of no mean ability. He will play his first game with the Standards next Sunday.

...REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING.—The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's North Pacific Presbyterian Board of Missions will be held in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church at the corner of Tenth and Alder, this afternoon at 2:30. The executive committee are requested to meet promptly at 2 o'clock.

...YOUNG DOCTORS.—S. C. Beckwith writes to THE OREGONIAN as follows from New York, under date of June 10: "Drs. George F. Koehler and J. Hunter Wells, of your city, called to-day. Dr. Wells is to attend the Polyclinic this summer. Dr. Koehler is a graduate of this year.

...DEATH OF MRS. JAMES A. STEPHENS.—Mr. T. A. Stephens yesterday received the sad news of the death of his sister-in-law, Mrs. James A. Stephens, wife of the ex-mayor of Virginia City, Nev. Mrs. Stephens died in San Francisco a few days since, after a long illness.

...A SLIGHT ACCIDENT.—Owing to a slight accident to motor No. 3, on the Mount Tabor line yesterday only hourly trips were made during the day. The damage has been repaired and the motor is on duty again, so that the usual half-hour trips will be resumed to-day.

...D. R. MURPHY ELECTED PRESIDENT.—At the adjourned meeting of Branch 58 of the Young Men's Institute last evening, Daniel R. Murphy was re-elected president on the first ballot. He received 38 votes, E. G. Sharrott 19 and U. F. Blouin 4.

...FROM SAN FRANCISCO.—Mr. Henry Ach arrived here yesterday from San Francisco. He is on his way to Seattle on business and will probably spend a few days in this city on his return.

...THE STEAMER MISCHIEF.—The steam schooner Mischief, Captain J. J. Winsat, master, has arrived here from Coos bay. She brings fifty cords of match wood.

...MISS HATTIE ROSE will give an elocutionary entertainment at Masonic hall to-morrow evening.

SAVAGES WERE THEIR FOES

Meeting of the Indian War Veteran Encampment Yesterday.

...Good Attendance—Election of Officers—Other Business Transacted—Flag To Be Presented—Addresses Made—Etc.

For the trail and the footlog have vanished,
And the canoe has a song and a tale,
And the flickering church spire has banished
The uncanny red man from the vale;
The coyuse is no longer in fashion—
He is gone—with a flutter of heels,
And the old wars are dead, and their passion
In the crystals of culture congealed:—
—Pioneer Poem.

The annual encampment of the Indian War Veterans was held in the city council chamber, at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, with Colonel L. F. Mosher in the chair. Grand Adjutant M. R. Hathaway acted as secretary.

The committee on credentials, James K. Kelly, chairman, reported the following members entitled to a seat in the meeting:

Multnomah Camp No. 2—Colonels, J. K. Kelly, J. D. Biles and R. P. Shaw; majors, T. J. Eckerson, A. E. Wait and P. K. Castleman; captains, J. H. McMillan and A. J. Chapman; and M. V. Payne, R. H. Holmes and M. R. Hathaway.

Henshaw Camp No. 3—Captains, G. L. Roland, R. B. Laughlin and William Laughlin; and Major Moore.

Mills Camp No. 4—Captain N. S. Todd.

Boston County Camp No. 5—Colonel J. Kelsey and Captain Norman Silly.

Umpqua Camp No. 6—Colonel S. F. Mosher, Captain W. G. Hill; lieutenants, W. Williams, F. R. Hill; J. L. McKinney, J. S. Cooper, R. T. McCulloch and Captain H. H. Woodward.

Lane County Camp No. 7—Captain F. C. Noland.

Bennett Camp No. 8—Colonel T. B. Wait and Captains J. G. Wright and T. C. Shaw.

L. I. Stevens Camp, No. 9—Captain A. R. Balberson.

J. W. Nesmith Camp, No. 10.—Colonels M. M. Chase, A. W. Woodward, W. C. Painter and Louis McMorris.

Southern Camp, No 11—Captain D. S. Holton.

The general business of the encampment, hearing reports of committees, etc., was transacted.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The balloting for officers to serve through the ensuing year, resulted in the election of the following gentlemen: H. M. Chase, grand commander; T. C. Shaw, senior vice grand commander; P. K. Castleman, junior vice grand commander; Dr. W. C. McKay, surgeon, and Captain J. H. McMillan, grand marshal.

A letter was read by the grand commander from Colonel R. McClure, notifying the encampment of his desire to present it with an elegant flag. The flag is now in the hands of the grand adjutant, and the presentation will be made by Governor Moore, of Washington territory.

Mrs. Kate K. P. Mosher, of Covington, Ky., also addressed the encampment, acknowledging the receipt of an engrossed resolution and a beautiful gold badge, presented to her by the grand encampment last year.

The grand adjutant was directed to call for a report of all deaths in the different camps, for the purpose of incorporating the death-roll in the minutes of the meeting.

W. G. Steel, secretary of the Oregon Alpine Club, extended to the encampment an invitation to be present and participate in the reminiscent meeting in the evening. The invitation was received with thanks.

Dr. W. C. McKay addressed the encampment in a few well-chosen words, expressing a deep sense of pleasure in being present at their deliberations, and closed with a flattering eulogy to Donald McKay, the Indian war scout, who also was present.

Colonel L. F. Mosher was appointed a committee of one to arrange a programme with the Pioneer Association for public exercises, to be given jointly by the two associations next July.

THE DEADLY RESERVOIR.

No Engineer Responsible for the Recent Awful Disaster.

The Work Done by a Railway Contractor—Bungling and Unskillful Work Exposed—Astonishing Disclosures.

The Engineering News of New York has published the following results of a survey and examination of the Johnstown dam and of inquiries in Johnstown and Pittsburg, by which various facts not yet made public were ascertained:

The first break in the dam occurred in July, 1862, and was caused by a defect in the culvert through which two feet discharge pipes were carried for letting out water from the bottom of the reservoir. This break did comparatively little damage, the discharge having been quite slow, wholly from the bottom, and choked from time to time from the fall of material from above. It carried out only about half as much material from the dam as the last break, or about 50,000 cubic yards. Enough of the dam remained to make a little pond about eight feet deep above the dam, which stayed unused until, in May, 1875, the property, consisting of somewhat over 500 acres, was sold to Congressman John Reilly. The lake itself was 400 acres in area. After holding the property unused until 1879, Mr. Reilly offered it to the late Colonel B. F. Ruff, an old and successful railroad and tunnel contractor and the originator of the South Fork Fishing and Hunting Club, for the sum of $40,000. Colonel Ruff interested in the project and stated to them that the dam could be reconstructed for not over $1500, and that he would take a contract to do it for $1700. We have this and the following facts on the most unimpeachable authority. On this basis the club was organized, and for some time these three gentlemen were the only persons in it. No one of them is now connected with it. Colonel Ruff's idea had been to reconstruct the dam much lower, only forty feet high, but it soon appeared that to cut down the spillway or waste wier, which is through rock, would cost more than to reconstruct the dam to the original hight, and by the time this had been done the total expenditure, as shown by the pay-rolls, had been slightly over $10,000, or about 20 cents per cubic yard. There still remained the work of rip-rapping the slopes and other miscellaneous work, both which our information is less precise, being only that it 'may' have cost $7000, but not more, bring the total cost up to the very small figure of $17,000, which have been given on other authority in newspaper dispatches. The work was all done in the summer of 1880. The original dam was estimated to cost $168,000 and actually cost nearly $240,000.

TWO OTHER PITTSBURG GENTLEMEN

Colonel Ruff engaged as foreman and superintendent for this work a Mr. Edward Pearson, a cousin of the present mayor of Allegheny City.

It is the General impression around Johnstown and Pittsburg, among those who know anything about it, that Mr. Pearson was the "engineer" of the repairs, but this is incorrect. He has

NEVER BEEN AN ENGINEER,

But after 1880 was employed in the local freight department of the Pennsylvania railroad at Pittsburg, until he formed his present connection, which is with the firm of Money & Co., general teamsters for the Pennsylvania railroad freight department. We were also told by some that Colonel Ruff was the "engineer," but this also is incorrect. So far as we can ascertain by diligent inquiry, he not only was never an engineer, but he had never been engaged before even as a contractor on waterworks or dam construction. If he was ever so employed at all it would appear that he must have been to an unimportant extent. In fact our information is positive, direct, and unimpeachable that at no time during the process of rebuilding the dam was any engineer whatever, young or old, good or bad, known or unknown, engaged in or consulted as to the work: a fact which will be hailed by engineers everywhere with great satisfaction, as relieving them as a body from a heavy burden of suspicion and reproach. The precautions taken against failure were only such as an old railroad contractor's knowledge of hydraulic engineering indicated were admissible without further increasing a contemplated investment of $8700, which had to be increased at last by over $10,000.

Information gathered for us by Mr. T. S. Miller, M. E., of the Edgewood Manufacturing Company, corresponds with that gathered for us from other reliable sources—that the work of reconstruction was done with

THE SLIGHT CARE

Which these facts make probable. The old material which had caved in was left untouched, the top of the dam was worked down on to it, the old pipes and culvert, which still remained in a somewhat injured condition, were covered over with earth and permanently closed, a double row of hemlock plank sheet piling being driven across the old channel. There was no careful ramming in watered layers. Leaking during the process was great, and some tons of hay and straw were filled in to stop it. The dam was finally made fairly tight, but has always leaked at the bottom, and of late years the leakage has been increasing. The original crest hight of the dam was decreased from two to three feet, and the spillway was shortly after obstructed with gratings to retain the fish, and a trestle bridge built across the opening.

The spillway was obstructed, first, by a sill about two inches high; second, by an iron fish guard eighteen inches high, composed of half-inch rods one and a quarter inches apart, or three-quarters in the clear, or close enough to readily catch leaves and fine brush; third, by an 8x8 stick floating cornerwise, sliding vertically on a rod at each end, and armed with closely driven nails to keep fish from jumping over; fourth, by the posts of the trestle bridge closing about 8 per cent. of the opening, and fifth, at the time of the break by a ragged piece of drift ten feet long and two feet in diameter. Had the bridge and all its obstructing attachments been cut away in time the disaster might

POSSIBLY HAVE BEEN AVERTED

We have investigated carefully the various specific reports that the dam was occasionally inspected by engineers, but find no evidence that it was ever inspected and approved, even once, by any engineer commissioned for that purpose, who, by an stretch of charity, would be regarded as any expert. A few inspections by local or junior engineers have from time to time been made, some approving, some disapproving, but none of either kind come from sources which would command much weight in the profession. The report that certain Pennsylvania engineers regularly inspected the dam is denied by a number of officers who should know, and is unquestionably without foundation. The dam was a contractor's dam. Engineers had nothing to do either with its construction or its maintenance. Mr. J. S. Parke, it is true, who was in charge of the efforts to save the dam, was an engineer by education, but he is a very young man, only a year or two out of college, and did about all that could have been done except to clear away the spillway. To raise the whole crest of the lake ten inches per hour, which is the reported rate before the flood required an accumulation of only 4020 feet per second, and that much more spillway capacity would have saved the break. Two feet more hight of crest would have given it. The sag in the crest was therefore the immediate destroying agency.

PORT TOWNSEND.

Railroad Enthusiasm at That Place.

Port Townsend Argus.

Our business men have at last awakened to the necessity of taking some steps towards the building of our railroad. The action taken on Thursday evening should have been done months ago, but the trite saying "better late than never" can be used with force.

The welfare of Port Townsend hangs upon having a railroad, therefore it is the duty of our citizens to leave no stone unturned until that end is accomplished. Our citizens are aroused to the importance of the matter and seem determined to persevere until the railroad is in thorough working order.

Enthusiasm must be characterized by work. It is not alone necessary that cheepeople are aroused, but they must be aroused in a substantial manner. Every citizen should do something to aid in carrying out the plans that were suggested at the meeting on Thursday evening. In a matter of such vital importance as this is, to our city's future prosperity, there should be no laggards, but all should be willing and anxious to aid the soliciting committee in raising the sum that is necessary to complete the plans that have been formulated.

In Port Townsend we have every resource for building up a city that will be one of the largest in the state of Washington. Nowhere on the Sound is there such a site for a city. Where is there such a harbor? The only requisite is that we lack is railroad facilities. Once the iron horse begins to tread his way into our city, the population, the business and all our advantages will take such an impetus that our citizens will imagine that they have awakened from a twenty-years' sleep.

Capital has been seeking an investment here, and has been kept out owing to the want of a railroad. Now when people abroad learn what has been done and what is contemplated, capital will pour into our city, and it will not be long until our city's population will be doubled, our business blocks increased in the same ratio. Manufactories will spring into existence, and on every hand will be evidences of great and lasting prosperity.

Now that the world abroad sees that our people are going to help themselves they will also come in and lend their assistance. The action of Thursday evening is fraught with many benefits for Port Townsend. The mere fact that in a very few hours $5,000 was subscribed for the railroad will show to the citizens of other cities the determination and energy of our own.

ASHES WILL KILL PEACH TREES.

TALENT, OR., June 16.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

In THE OREGONIAN of the 15th inst., under the heading "Of Interest to Farmers," I noticed the experiment of a California orchardist, claiming he had killed the peach-borer by putting a gallon of ashes around each tree; and fearing that others might be induced to treat their peach trees in the same way, I will say don't do it, if you are going to use hard wood ashes unleached.

Early this spring I was induced to try ashes to prevent borers, using oak ashes, unleached, I dug around the trees to get the ashes against them at the surface and put about one quart of ashes to each tree. Of forty trees so treated, two-thirds are now dead, and I think the others will all die when the sap goes down, like a girdled tree they started to grow but soon commenced dying.

I discovered the ashes was injuring the trees in a month or six weeks after applying it, and took it all away from the trees carefully. But each tree was girdled completely, the bark being entirely dead, and the wood turned black. These trees were yearlings when set out and had stood one season in the orchard and made a good growth. Had examined them for borers and failed to find any. Perhaps it may be of profit, as well as interesting to the inexperienced orchardists, to learn that ashes will kill a young peach tree much quicker than borers. C. K. KLUM.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Woodland is in Cowlitz county, W. T., and the St. Helens Mist tells how dairymen there have organized an association with about 500 cows represented in it, and expected, by the aid of a small steamer, to collect the milk of 2000 cows. They levied $1 50 as assessment on each cow represented and were taking steps to build a creamery at Woodland. This was right, and the creamery will soon be in operation, if not already. What the creamery interest now needs is a "combine," so they will operate in harmony and not compete against one another. A genuine "trust" is necessary, and a combination of creaming should be entered into to prevent unreasonable competition. Combinations are well enough when done in self-defense and to secure living rates for good products.

Congress has provided $250,000 for the irrigation of arid lands, and this large sum will be expended under the direction of Major Powell. The Truckee river will be experimented with, ditches and canals dug, and proof made that irrigation can be performed at reasonable cost. Also, work will be done on Snake river, in Idaho. If the work is successful no doubt congress will do more for the same purpose. If the millions of acres of arid lands of the interior can be made useful and productive, it will result in giving homes to millions of people and make a region once known as "The Great American Desert" bloom like a garden. There is a broad extent of arid lands in Oregon, and if they can be redeemed for the use of man our state will be greatly improved in every respect.

Western Oregon was the home of most of the pioneers, as very few of the early comers found anything to satisfy them east of the mountains. A number of these veterans have been asked concerning their recollection of the earlier seasons as regards rainfall, and all agree that at no time do they remember a winter when the rainfall was so light as it has been since last fall. The effect is seen in springs and running streams through the Willamette valley, as all are lower than usual and there are fears that some will go dry. Those who have gardens and orchards and intend to useall necessary precautions must cultivate constantly, and those who do not will be apt to see the difference. The state of Oregon for once has missed the perpetual rains that cause so much comment, and we have no reason to be satisfied with the effect.

This is a year when little snow in the mountains exists to produce climatic effects, and travel was as convenient in springtime as usually in July. Several bands of horses have been driven over the Cascade mountains already and made their appearance in good order. Those who drove them report good roads and plenty of feed along the trail. It is noticeable that the stock of horses east of the Cascades is improving in character and build, size and strength, which is due to the introduction of better sires. In a few years some of the most successful breeders will have droves of animals to take that will command credits for excellence as work stock in any country. The small body of snow now lying in the mountains leaves the country more liable to mountain fires, as well as may create climatic influences that will dry up pastures and late grain crops.

A lady writing from Ellensburgh says they got up a ball there for the women of Seattle and made $170. She says they would have made more but for the general understanding that Seattle people did not deserve aid. Already we witnessed the liberation during and after the fire days, so no one can half realize what it is to see 10,000 houseless people, and the papers fail to speak of hundreds of women and girls who are out of work and have no much pride to be fed at charity balls. Do the men think nothing of it." So the Ellensburgh people raised their money for women exclusively, and Mrs. Hamilton was to see that it was properly dispensed. The same letter speaks the general sentiment when it adds: "Seattle people should not be given to Tacoma for their liberality in giving money and the constant personal efforts made." The ball at Ellensburg was the finest social event that was ever known there.

By what process it has been demonstrated that Washington territory has a higher percentage of intelligence than any other of the states and territories is not known perhaps, but the result has been in some way arrived at, and the world is electrified with the wonderful announcement. Perhaps the editors of Washington territory say so—their own word was taken for it, or that of their cumulative newspapers that go on increasing in number and effervescence every day. No one doubts intelligence in the coming state. How could it be else than intelligent when living so long next door to so good a mother as Oregon and having such a father as our Uncle Sam. But we would a little at the superlative sense and decree that everything east of the Cascades in Washington and the 49th parallel. Even when they burn a town they do it up thoroughly so that they can brag on it as the biggest fire for its size ever known. When the last conflagration comes they will set the Columbia river ablaze to start a fire from the Washington side.

While it is true that the spring rains have been liberal and would have been abundant, as they listed until the last quarter of May, the general supply of moisture for the season has not been sufficient to answer the needs of the soil for the production of crops. This is especially true of the region east of the Cascades, where they never enjoy a heavy precipitation, but are satisfied, as they express it, "if the two moistures meet." That is, if the moisture in the lower soil rises to meet the rain or melting snows that go down from the surface. This year the rain and snow were not sufficient to wet the soil down to the usual depth, and though the rains made crops grow well and nicely, there is serious apprehension felt that crops will be destroyed if this coming month is commonly warm. A gentleman in business east of the Cascades remarked to a friend last week that he feared great distress, as the result of this unusually warm season following so remarkably light a rainfall. He feared a general destruction of crops should the weather continue warm, but there is now a change to cool weather that may work better results. The best that can be hoped, as many say, is that crops may not be universally ruined in the dryer parts of Eastern Oregon.

Speculation in timber lands has assumed a shape that is not altogether reliable or honorable. If we are to judge from the Oregon Mist. According to that authority men advertise to locate parties on timber lands and take them out and show the property they will acquire if they locate under their direction. These timber land experts play their game in a very dishonest way, as they locate half a dozen or more people on the same piece of timber land; at least they show the same piece of timber and make them believe they get it for their own. This is about as scandalous a fraud as could easily be perpetrated, for the land the parties really get may be inferior. Every man who takes up land in any way needs to be certain of its character and identity and take due care not to be imposed on. These land locators charge roundly for their services for many people are glad to make a choice location at an expense of $5 or $100. As the Mist says many persons from the prairie West are unable to tell the difference between fir and hemlock and are easily deceived. To secure a land claim it is far better to get some settler to accompany him who knows the country and is a man versed in such matters. Of course some agents are honorable but make sure of that fact before locating through their instrumentality.

Just now our gardens and orchards are infested with slugs—slimy pests that are a terrible annoyance but are not easily destroyed. The garden slug is known to every one as a pest that devours tender vegetation and plants, including flowers. It is half an inch long, climbs the lattice leaves and is really a pest, but how to destroy it is a question not easily answered. Noticing a couple of ducks in a lady's garden here in Portland, the fact was remarked upon and it was learned that they had the run of the garden because they would devour snails. A lady in the country tried gathering them to feed to chickens, but they refused to touch them. The small slug on the cherry tree is in full force now, just when the whole cherry crop is ripening. It is probable a spraying of the leaves with London purple or Paris green would kill them by poisoning the leaves, but no one wishes to put the poison on the ripening fruit. They will be gone by the time the fruit is all gathered. To spray the trees about June 1st and take care to put it on the under side, would be worth trying. They do not injure pears as much as cherries, are small but very numerous. To throw ashes or road dust on them kills them, as it absorbs the slime in which they move and which is essential to their existence.

Prohibition sts are entitled to know the following incident to be able to appreciate the extent of the evil and the broad legislation necessary to destroy it. A farmer's wife in the Willamette valley had a can of blackberry sauce that began to "work" recently, during the warm weather, when the rest of us were glad to quit work. She emptied the contents of the can into a stump where fowls found and partook liberally. The alcoholic properties soon became apparent, for the chickens walked about with their high bones sticking up through the wing feathers and one old hen gave it up as a bad job and lay down on her side with her legs promiscuous, like. The old rooster was the most comical sight for he tried to look wise and strutted about with all the conceit of a tippler of human size. His antics, struggles to look wise, leering this way and that, as he sat on his tail feathers, with occasional turns of being sick at his stomach, were comical, but the sight of absurdity was reached when he lost his balance as he tried to crow. But this does not equal the story of a flock of geese that were all knocked over by eating some fermented waste. They lay as dead drunk as a log, and their mistress sadly stripped them of all their feathers, so that when they came to themselves they were not "clothed and in their right minds," until the good woman made them red flannel jackets to wear.

You will seldom need a doctor if you have Simmons Liver Regulator handy.

AN OLD PIONEER'S RETURN.

David Crawford, One of Oregon's Home-Builders, Again Here.

Now a Resident of Pennsylvania—He Comes to Revisit Old Acquaintances and View the Wonderland Time Has Created.

BUTTEVILLE, June 17.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The seventeenth annual reunion of Oregon Pioneers, will take place at Portland, on the 19th inst. The pioneers who came to Oregon before the discovery of gold in the latter years of the 40s, were actuated by the common incentive to introduce the arts of civilized life, and build up homes and a state on the Pacific coast dedicated to the rights of man. Coming with their families and all they possessed, they had to meet and overcome nearly the whole catalogue of imaginable difficulties.

At that time the vast empire of the wild west, reaching from the Missouri and Iowa border to the Pacific ocean, was in undisputed possess on of wild savage tribes. Yet those people, brav ng the dangers, came by hundreds with their slow-moving ox trains, receiving assistance from neither church or state, depending alone on their own resources to meet coming events. The fact of their having entered upon so formidable an undertaking would indicate that they were not of the class who are easily discouraged or intimidated. The situation was of their own choosing, and they came resolved to face it and stay.

They found themselves at their journey's end in a new world, as it were, where all nature seemed to be fashioned on a scale of colossal grandeur. In their front rolled the waves of the world's greatest ocean; behind them an unbroken wilderness 2000 miles in extent. Here on this ocean-bound shore, they pitched their tents and proceeded to lay the foundation of their Anglo-American government, based on civil and religious liberty, the dearest rights of a free-spirited people.

Time has so thinned the ranks of the pioneers who nearly half a century ago brought under civilized rule the wild land "where rolls the Oregon," that it may now literally be said of them, as it has perhaps been figuratively said of angels visits, they are few and far between.

This communication was suggested by the arrival in this state, of David Crawford, one of Oregon's early home builders, now a resident of Shaking Valley, Blair county, Pa., who left here thirty years ago. Mr. Crawford crossed the plains with the immigration of 1844, remaining in the territory until 1859. Having sold his farm to the late John Scheurer, he returned to the Atlantic side, bought a farm near the old parental home in Pennsylvania, got married and has brought his wife with him to see this far-famed wonderland. He has no relatives here nearer of kin than an Oregon's pioneers. It is these now old people among whom he spent the springtime of life, and this highly favored land that he has come so far to see. He expects to meet a goodly number of the old time-worn veterans around the camp-fire at their approaching re-union and it is to be hoped that his expectations so far as possible will be fully realized.

Dave Crawford is prominently identified with the history of the early settlement of the North Pacific coast. He was with Colonel M. T. Simmons's first immigrant exploring expedition to the Puget sound country in 1845; took up a land claim there upon which he made considerable improvement, but returned in 1846 to this valley of Vallica. He is a veteran soldier of the Cayuse Indian war, remaining in the service until the close of hostile operations in the summer of 1848. In September of the latter year he went overland to the newly discovered gold mines of California, returning to his Oregon home in 1849.

Crawford was a bold, valliant worker in the front rank of Oregon's pioneers during the trying years of transition from savage to civilized life—when all the villages of the North Pacific coast, excepting the little hamlet at the falls of the Willamette, were Indian villages. He now looks with wonder and eyes on the changes that have taken place during his thirty years' absence as a marvel of industrial energy and successful enterprise. Like all the early pioneers, Mr. Crawford is a learned linguist, but speaks two languages, having in the association age of Oregon mastered the idioms of ancient Chinook, in which, now, almost silent tongue, he still familiarly greets his old-time Klatawum. WILLARD H. REES.

AMERICAN SHIPS NOT WANTED.

WOODLAND, W. T., June 15.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Last Thursday's OREGONIAN contained a very valuable article about American shipping, wherein reasons were given why the merchant marine of the United States could not, since 1855, successfully compete with that of other nations in the foreign carrying trade, but was gradually forced to the wall.

The causes given in said article of the decline of our shipping are seldom put clearer and plainer and with more truth before the people, and will hardly find any dispute. The next question, however, is: How can this shipping be built up again? And another question arises then: Is it profitable to build up this shipping again through governmental aid?

From a principle of protection, years ago, a tax has been put on vessels bought by American citizens abroad. Instead of assisting our ship-builders, its chief effect was to place our shipowners at a disadvantage against the English, as the latter could build iron vessels and steamships cheaper than we could. This tax should be abolished for vessels used in foreign trade, as it has worked much more harm than good. But as the author of the article, Mr. Dingley, of Maine, very truly suggests, the abolishment of this tax is not sufficient to put the American shipowner on an equal footing with the European, as the former will have to pay higher wages to officers and men, which will increase the running cost of his vessels considerably beyond what it will cost the European shipowner.

Mr. Dingley thinks the most feasible plan to place the American shipowner on equal footing with foreigners would be by navigation bounties, paid out in a similar way as the British do, who pay as high as 30 cents per registered ton for each thousand miles sailed.

Admitting this navigation boundary business to be the best way to build up our merchant marine, we come to the next question: Is it profitable to build up this shipping again? American shipping leagues will only be too glad to approve plans like this one to pay bounties. But they are not the only parties interested in the question. If our shipowners receive the bounties the people will have to pay them; and the number of the former is small, of the latter large.

Very truly, says the writer, that while Great Britain has devoted her energies to ocean commerce we have been building up the West, which brought us greater profit. That has been so in the past. The same holds good in the present. And if the welfare of a man is greater in the West than as a sailor on the ocean, why compel him to work where his work will produce the least? And why make up the deficiency with money from the treasury? Is not all of our foreign shipping done so far at reasonable, may very often at very low rates? And if, through governmental aid, American vessels do the shipping, will it be done cheaper? And if the English, French or German sovereigns pay subsidies for steam lines and bounties for sailing vessels, do not we, the American people, reap part of the benefits?

Certainly we do, as our passengers and freight are carried cheaper than else they would. And if those governments pay subsidies to steamlines to foreign countries, where without such help no profitable sailing vessels are made up, shall we follow them in this mad race? And will not we have to spend $2 for subsidies or bounties, where the Europeans spend one, to overcome the disadvantages we labor under, as fully explained by Mr. Dingley? And if we have to spend that much, will $3,000,000 per year suffice, as the American Shipping Leagueas modestly suggests? And if the bounties are paid once, will it be profitable to reduce them in fifteen years to nothing, as stated? If so, will we not lose again what we have built up? The history of the principle of protection shows that it is not so difficult to beg n the protection on a certain commodity as to withdrew it, so the probabilities are that the protected shipowners will need the same assistance right along, and will want more every time.

Many Americans might favor Mr. Dingley's proposition to aid our merchant marine from a feeling of national pride, to make our nation on the seas equal or superior to any other, but the satisfaction of this feeling may be found to be very costly.

Let the people of the United States develop the West if they can do it more profitably, and then sail vessels. Then we do not need to fill the pockets of a small number of shipowners with the money of the people. There surely are other, and I think better means for the money in the treasury.

For instance, a work of the greatest importance in the middle part of the United States is waiting development. It is the connection, through a ship canal, of the Mississippi with Lake Michigan. No engineering difficulties are in the way, as the condition of the territory through which such a canal would have to pass is very favorable for such a project.

The second largest river in the United States, the Columbia river, is entitled to a little more consideration than it has received so far, and much needs ought to be used freely to open up this river for navigation as fast as possible.

Since the collapse of the Panama canal scheme the government of this country ought to render all assistance within its power to any corporation which gives the best guarantee for a speedy completion of a ship canal connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans in Central America. And if our treasury is too much filled after this, our tariff ought to be reduced to a basis appropriate with our expenses.

Though it is very well to build up a powerful navy and place our coast defense in good condition, we ought not to do anything to build up our merchant marine in the way of bounties or any like protection, as the general welfare would not be benefited by such means. W. W. KOCH.

STATE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Under date of Salem, June 15, E. B. McElroy, state superintendent of public instruction, has issued the following:

The State Teachers' Association will be held at Salem, July 1, 2 and 3, 1889.

The association will convene in the legislative hall, capitol building, at 7:30 P. M., on Monday, July 1. All teachers and friends of education are cordially invited.

The department of superintendence will be organized by the several county and city superintendents, and will meet in the office of the superintendent of public instruction at 1:30 o'clock P. M., on Monday, July 1.

The hotels of Salem will entertain those attending, during the days of the association, at reduced rates.

Arrangements have been made with the Southern Pacific (lines in Oregon) and the Oregon Pacific railroad companies for reduced rates to those attending, and the usual reduction will be granted.

The usual "Fourth of July" rates will be in effect on the O. R. & N. railroad lines in Oregon from July 1 to July 4. These rates will be open to teachers and others who may wish to attend the association. Several state superintendents of public instruction, and other leading educators from the Pacific Coast states have been invited and are expected to be present.

NEWBERG NOTES.

NEWBERG, Or., June 17.

There was quite an exciting time on Main street last Saturday night. Some mischievous persons reported to the W. C. T. U. that our druggist had opened a saloon in the rear of his store and the women from the old town (about forty in all) marched up and into the drug store, sang, prayed and preached, ace ned the druggist of selling whisky and asked him to take down his bar. The druggist informed them he had no bar, when they pointed to his prescription case and asked if that was not a bar. When informed to the contrary they marched back a little faster than they came, vowing never to be fooled again.

A Chinese factory has been opened, located near the depot.

Two more large buildings are going up near the corner of Main and Hancock streets.

THE OREGONIAN RAILWAY.

MEDA, Or., June 13.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Your paper has had considerable to say about a certain "piratical corporation," but there is another to which that term might be applied, though perhaps in different degree. I mean the Oregonian Railway Company. It is a disgrace to the state that a road carrying its charter should be run in the style that this railroad is. About every other batch of freight one receives at Sheridan is minus some valuable portion, and it is vain to apply to headquarters for damages. The road is worth nothing, claims are ignored, and no redress obtainable. A road that robs its patrons and refuses to pay its employes ought to have its charter revoked in short order. Mr. E. Ahlf, 160 North Fourteenth street, Portland.
Miss Mary Walter, 361 Twelfth street, Portland.
Miss Sophia Glick, 111 Market street, Portland. Cross-eyed since birth.
Andrew Anderson, Fort Townsend, W. T., cross-eyed from paralysis of the outer muscles of the eye; cured by one operation.

The above are only a few names selected from a list of hundreds who have been successfully treated by Dr. Darrin. No charge is made unless the cure is perfect, and the treatment is almost painless.

The Doctor's Place of Business.

Dr. Darrin can be consulted free at 235 Fifth street, corner of Main, Portland. Office hours, from 10 to 5 o'clock daily; evenings, 7 to 8; Sundays, 10 to 12. All curable chronic diseases, loss of manhood, blood taints, syphilis, gleet, gonorrhœa, stricture, spermatorrhœa, seminal weakness, or loss of desire of sexual power, in man or woman, catarrh and deafness, are confidentially and successfully treated. Cures of private diseases guaranteed, and never published in the papers. Circulars sent free. Most cases can receive home treatment after a visit to the doctor's office.

Dr. Darrin, so successful in treating cross-eyes, will be at the firm's office permanently, and will devote most of his attention to that specialty, as well as diseases peculiar to women; also club-feet and other deformities.

GRAND CELEBRATION —AT— VANCOUVER, WASH. TER., 88

Great Civic and Military Demonstration.

The citizens of Vancouver announce to the public that on the Fourth of July next they will have a grand demonstration in aid of the

Johnstown Sufferers

The day will be ushered in by the booming of cannon and the firing of salutes, to be followed by a Great Civic and Military Procession.

Orations by Distinguished Men.

Games, Music, Dancing and Refreshments

Following these will be a brilliant and exciting

SHAM BATTLE

By Regular Troops, Embracing Extensive Operations of Cavalry, Artillery and Infantry, together with Troops of the National Guard, under direction of General John Gibbon, U. S. A., commanding the Department of Columbia, and under command of able and experienced officers of the regular army.

At night there will be

A GRAND DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS!

In the Military Post of Vancouver Barracks, including Brilliant and Beautiful Mortar Bombs, thrown from Coborn Mortars, representing actual Siege Operations by night, the shells bursting in mid-air with beautiful and artistic coruscations of color.

This unequaled demonstration will be conducted with great skill and precision in every respect, and a Grand Gala Day afforded all at a trifling expense, with the certainty that every cent paid in will be for one of the noblest purposes now or ever before demanded of our country, viz., that of affording our stricken fellow countrymen assistance in the hour of a great need, following the most appalling calamity of modern times. While this effort is notably one for the prompt, efficient and extensive

Aid of the Johnstown Sufferers,

There will still be no exorbitant charges to the public. Refreshments will be served to all at reasonable rates, and a small fee of 25c only charged for admission to the grounds, especially set apart for, and admitting of the view of the Battle, Games and Fireworks.

Specially Low Railroad and Steamboat Rates

Will be arranged for, providing for return to Portland and other points after the Fireworks.

Further particulars in small bills.

All are Cordially Invited to Attend.

PRICES FROM $600 A LOT UPWARDS.

TO EAST PORTLAND.

This magnificent property comprises 1400 lots and lies immediately between the city of East Portland (population [illegible]) the south and the city of Albina (population 4000) on the north, being really a "reserve" between two populous [illegible] combined population of SIXTEEN THOUSAND. It is high, commanding a view of the entire cities of East Portland and Albina and is reached by the street cars of the Willamette Bridge Railway Co. from either Portland. This company is now operating two lines of street cars, one running north from Holladay's addition, heart of East Portland, across the Morrison street bridge, and the other running due west across the new steel bridge terminating in Portland. In addition to these two lines the cars of the Vancouver motor line run directly through the addition from north to south. The property can also be easily reached from the "west side" by either the Southern Pacific road Company's steam ferry or by the small ferries running from Portland to Albina. Some of the finest residences on the "east side" are located in this addition. Many of the most prominent residents of Portland and East Portland are now purchasing property in Holladay's addition and many elegant and substantial residences will be constructed there during the coming year. A magnificent Boulevard, Holladay avenue, 100 feet wide, cuts through the entire property from west to east, and is one of the most popular drives out of the city. This connects with the new steel railroad and wagon bridge (spanning the Willamette) on the west, thus giving easy access into Portland from this most desirable property. Address or call on

THE COFFEE SITUATION.

The New York Shipping List has the following article on the situation of the coffee market: The long-continued complaints of dullness in local dealers in coffee has called attention to the great change that has taken place in the manner in which the distribution of coffee is now conducted—a change that although making itself manifest for a number of years past has only now reached a point where the diversion of trade is becoming to dry up the old channels, and the preparation of roasted coffee in large establishments specially devoted to that industry, which has been gradually expanding, now, in this city, has grown to gigantic proportions, and is now carried on in Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburg and St. Louis, with smaller establishments almost every important city. These establishments accordingly become the chief buyers of green coffee, thereby centralizing what was formerly known as the jobbing trade and thus transferring to themselves the actual distribution through the channels of direct consumption. Still another influence against which jobbers in the interior have had to contend has been competition among large roasters who have sought to gain every advantage in purchasing supplies and have assumed the position as buyers heretofore occupied by the old time jobber. The establishment by the old time jobber of a year's or even more than a year's supply of coffee, which has resulted 200,000 bags a year ago, as near as possible to the primary source of supply and generally becomes a large importer. A few figures will illustrate how this change has affected the coffee trade of New York. During the year 1888 there arrived at this port 1,870,000 bags of Rio and Santos coffee. Of this quantity 800,000 bags were shipped to the interior direct from the vessel and paid no storage here, and therefore may be put down as the direct importations and consumption of interior buyers, chiefly roasters. The principal local roaster is estimated to use not less than 300,000 bags of the above described coffee. Options remain quiet; buyer year, 79½c, seller year, new, 71½c.

Oats—Trading is quiet but holders show firmness, and concessions are less frequent. The market on all fairs an upward tendency; quote feed 90c@$1 02½.

Millstuffs—The market remains much the same as previously reported. Business is of a quiet nature, and prices rule steady at $11.50@13 for bran, and $12@15 for middlings per ton.

Potatoes—No change in the situation—Choice, 85c@$1 25; Peerless, 65c@$1 00; Garnet Chile, 60@65c.

Hops—The market is easy. Quotations, nominal: Calcuttas, June and July, 8@9c.

Wool—Steady, with a fair demand.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

A Stout Backbone

Is as essential to physical health as to political consistency. For weakness of the back, rheumatism, and disorders of the kidneys, the tonic and diuretic action of Hostetters' Stomach Bitters is the one thing needful. The stomach is the mainstay of every other organ, and by invigorating the digestion with this preparation, the spinal column, and its dependencies, are sympathetically strengthened. The dyspeptic and bilious will find it a pure vegetable stimulant and tonic.

Dyspepsia

Is one of the most prevalent of diseases. Few persons have perfect digestion. One of Ayer's Pills, taken after dinner, or a dose at night before retiring, never fails to give relief in the worst cases, and wonderfully assists the process of nutrition. As a family medicine, Ayer's Pills are unequaled.

James Quinn, 90 Middle st., Hartford, Conn., testifies: "I have used Ayer's Pills for the past thirty years and consider them an invaluable family medicine. I know of no better remedy for liver troubles, and have always found them a prompt cure for dyspepsia."

Lucius Alexander, of Marblehead, Mass., was long a severe sufferer from Dyspepsia, complicated with enlargement of the Liver, most of the time being unable to retain any food in his stomach. Three boxes of Ayer's Pills cured him.

Frederic C. Greener, of East Dedham, Mass., for several months troubled with Indigestion, was cured before he used half a box of these Pills.

THE CAUSE OF CONSUMPTION

is now admitted by the medical authorities to be a deficiency or undue waste of Oxidizable Phosphorus normally existing in the human economy. The remedy consists in the administration of a preparation of Phosphorus being at once assimilable and oxidizable. WINCHESTER'S HYPOPHOSPHITES is the only preparation of Phosphorus which combines those characteristics in the highest degree. For Consumption, Bronchitis, Coughs, Night Sweats, and Nervous Diseases, it is unequaled. Recommended by Physicians. Sold by Druggists. $1 per bottle. Send for circular.

PORTLAND WINS A VICTORY

Henry Villard Forced to Make Important Concessions to Elijah Smith.

The Result of the Elections Is Satisfactory to the City and the Northwest—The Agreement Between the Parties in Interest.

The Oregon & Transcontinental and Oregon Railway & Navigation Company elections, which occurred yesterday, are to be considered in the light of results, and they are satisfactory. It was not a victory for Henry Villard; it was not a victory for Elijah Smith. It was a recognition of the claims and rights of all parties in interest; it was a complete victory for Portland.

True, Elijah Smith will not be re-elected president of the O. R. & N. Co. Neither will Henry Villard. If anyone came out ahead in the contest it was Elijah Smith. He was a very potent factor in the situation and he made demands that Mr. Villard conceded. In short, Mr. Villard yielded every point that the Board of Trade committee who visited New York last year, demanded.

Mr. Edmund Smith, of Philadelphia, formerly vice-president of the Philadelphia road, will be asked to become president of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company. It is understood that he will be elected and that he will consent to serve.

The most favorable feature of the Oregon Railway & Navigation election was that the seven Portland directors were elected unconditionally, and were instructed to push the Spokane Falls and Coeur d'Alene extensions.

THE AGREEMENT RATIFIED.

Villard in his address to the merchants of Portland last Friday evening referred several times to the agreement that had been made between the several parties in interest and which, if adopted, would settle all the differences. The terms of the agreement are given below:

First—All litigation in the New York courts affecting the Navigation company's interests will be dismissed. The dividends upon the Oregon Railway & Navigation stock will continue at 6 per cent. per annum.

Second—The Oregon Short Line lease of the Navigation company is to be modified so as to permit expenditures for the improvement of the line along the Columbia river and provide for purchase of additional equipment.

Third—It will be recommended that the Oregon & Transcontinental Company dispose of its Navigation stock.

Fourth—The presidents are pledged to an early consummation of a trackage arrangement, under which the Union and Northern Pacific companies will secure connection with the Navigation company in the region east of the Cascade mountains, and the Northern Pacific is to afford the Navigation company connections with Puget Sound by a trackage over its Pacific division.

The first three clauses of the agreement were ratified without a dissenting voice yesterday. No action was taken on the fourth clause. It was merely a matter of after-consideration. It was adopted and submitted to the traffic managers of the Union and Northern Pacific and the O. R. & N. both lines, who will arrange the details.

HOPING AGAINST HOPE.

The Union Pacific representatives, General Dodge and G. M. Lane, did not know until they had conferred with Elijah Smith that Villard had control of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company; at least, they did not confess their defeat, and they held out with the hope that something would turn up that would shape matters in their favor. They came here in pursuance of an agreement with Villard, according to the terms of which the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company was to have a compromise board of directors. Elijah Smith was dissatisfied with this arrangement because the directory contained the name of neither himself nor his brother. Finally, when Mr. Smith's name and Mr. Corbett's were definitely retired, Prosper W.'s name was substituted on the proposed compromise board for the name of Frederick P. Olcott, of New York.

Saturday evening Villard sued out an injunction in Judge Stearns's court to compel Elijah Smith, as president of the O. R. & N. Co. to receive and count the shares of O. R. & N. stock held by the Oregon & Transcontinental Company, and to be voted by that company in the O. R. & N. election. Villard maintained that the holding of this stock by the Oregon & Transcontinental Co. was legal and that he had a right to vote.

VILLARD WEAKENS.

This action did not disturb Mr. Smith one bit. Instead of fleeing from the enemy he made preparations to stand him off. He got ready to file an answer to Villard's complaint, and he would have petitioned the court not only to dissolve Mr. Villard's application for an injunction but to restrain Villard from voting the O. & T. holdings of O. R. & N. stock, on the ground that the O. & T. is not a legitimate corporation. Railroad men, say this forced Villard. He feared that a contest in the courts would have resulted disastrously to the O. & T., and a meeting of the parties in interest was proposed.

The meeting was held Sunday night, and the city clock was tolling 1 yesterday morning when an agreement was reached. Those present were Henry Villard, of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company; General G. M. Dodge and G. M. Lane, representing the Union Pacific, and Elijah Smith, representing the O. R. & N. Co. Mr. Smith, as has been stated, was firm in his demands, and Villard finally acceded to them. His accessions averted a long siege of litigation, for his application for an injunction would have been only the first move.

The result is very satisfactory to Portland, and will be equally satisfactory to the general interests of the Northwest. Villard agreed to get the O. & T.'s holdings in the O. R. & N. Co. at the earliest possible date, the object being to disperse the stock as widely as possible.

Another provision of the agreement was this: The roads north of Snake river which have been among the chief objects of contention, are to be taken, when completed, into the O. R. & N. system and will be operated as part of it. This will give Portland a direct line to the rich Coeur d'Alene mines and another line to Spokane Falls. These agreements are based on the continuance of the lease of the O. R. & N. lines to the Oregon Short Line and the Union Pacific, all the direct to be operated as one system. This maintains the independence of the O. R. & N. Company and assures the best possible results to Portland and the Northwest.

THE PREFERRED BOND SCHEME DROPPED.

A special meeting of the Oregon & Transcontinental Company was held yesterday afternoon, Paul Schulze in the chair, to consider the question of issuing $10 000,000 of preferred stock to guarantee a dividend of 6 per centum per annum thereon, and to secure this guaranty by the pledge of the stock of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company, owned by the Oregon & Transcontinental Company.

Chairman Schulze stated that it was considered inadvisable to issue the stock as proposed, and on motion, the proposition was dropped.

THE O. R. & N. ELECTION.

In the O. R. & N. election there was no opposition to the compromise ticket, and it was elected unanimously. Villard and his party voted 152,000 of the 240,000 shares; General Dodge and G. M. Lane, 12,000, and Elijah Smith the rest. Following are the directors elected:

Chas. E. Poehler, V. Mumford Moore, Henry R. Reed, Edmund Smith, Wm. P. St. John, H. W. Corbett, Henry Failing, W. S. Ladd, C. H. Lewis, Wm. McIntosh, John McCraken, W. S. Silvain, Prosper W. Smith.

VILLARD HAD HIS OWN WAY.

Villard had everything his own way in the Oregon & Transcontinental election. There were three tickets in the field and his had a majority of 40,000 shares. He voted 216,000 of the 240,000 shares. He was the owner of 21,703 of the shares not voted. Appended is the successful ticket:

Henry Villard, E. H. Abbott, Charles L. Colby, Joseph S. Tucker, Colgate Hoyt, Charles H. Ropes, C. A. Spaulding and Hector H. Tyndale, of New York; W. D. Rockfeller, C. D. Ballinger, A. D. Charlton, A. G. Fulton, M. G. Hall, C. H. Prescott, Joseph Simon, Paul Schulze and George H. Williams, of Portland.

General Dodge and G. M. Lane, of the Union Pacific voted 125,000 shares for this directory.

H. W. Cannon, S. H. Fay, Sidney Dillon, Joseph Simon, Charles J. Smith, C. R. Goodman, S. G. Reed, Samuel Thomas, James Steel, C. H. Prescott, H. C. Campbell, B. P. Cheney, Van R. DeLaunt, Marshall Field, C. B. Bellinger, G. M. Lane.

The Elijah Smith ticket was the same as the foregoing, except that it contained the name of Edward Cookingham, instead of C. H. Prescott. It all 34,000 shares were voted for it.

The new Eastern directors are Abbott, Decker, Ropes and Tyndale. The new Oregon directors are George H. Williams and T. H. Bartlett. They take the places of Charles Wesley Hanson and T. H. Tyndale.

The new directory elected the following officers: President, Henry Villard; vice president, Colgate Hoyt; second vice president, Paul Schulze; secretary and assistant treasurer, T. H. Tyndale; treasurer and assistant secretary, Edward Eades.

OTHER CORPORATION ELECTIONS.

The Northern Pacific Terminal Company elected these directors: Henry Failing, C. H. Lewis, C. A. Dolph, W. H. Holcomb, Paul Schulze, Charles J. Smith, Robert Harris, Richard Koehler and H. W. Corbett. The new directors are Smith and Corbett who succeed Elijah Smith and Henry Villard.

It is expected that the company will take some action in regard to terminal facilities in a few days. Colonel Charles F. Crocker, representing the Southern Pacific Company, is in the city, and it is expected that he will confer with the directors.

The Willamette Locks and Transportation Company elected as directors: N. L. Eastham, W. S. Ladd, Joseph Simon, C. O. T. Williams and J. C. Moreland.

The directors elected by the stockholders of the Oregon Improvement Company are: Elijah Smith, Charles F. Tag, H. K. Benedict, H. Hook, Fred L. Ames, W. M. Ladd, Joseph Simon, J. M. Flint, Henry Failing, C. H. Lewis, C. A. Dolph.

The election for directors of the Oregon Railway Extension Company resulted as follows: Henry Failing, C. A. Dolph, W. H. Holcomb, H. W. Corbett, C. H. Lewis.

The annual election of the Portland & Willamette Valley Railroad Company will be held to-day.

VILLARD LEAVES FOR NEW YORK.

Villard and party left for home yesterday afternoon. They will visit Tacoma and Seattle, and then go over the Hunt system and the O. R. & N. to Walla Walla. They will take a spin over the O. R. & N. lines to Moscow, Idaho, thence to Pullman and from Pullman to Spokane Falls. They will also go over the Palouse branch of the Northern Pacific. On their way East they will make a short stop at Yellowstone park. Mr. Villard expects to be in New York in two or three weeks.

EAST SIDE NEWS NOTES.

Special Meeting of the Council—Temporary Mayor Elected—The Vote Canvassed —Items.

There was a regular meeting of the city council last night, with President Merrick in the chair.

The president of the council announced that the city was without a mayor, and that it was the duty of the council to elect a mayor to fill out the unexpired term of the late E. C. Wheeler.

The council then proceeded to elect N. B. Crane mayor for the unexpired term.

Mr. Crane was notified of his election, and he was sworn in and took his seat.

When Mr. Crane was found by the committee who was sent out to notify him of his election, he had no intimation whatever what was wanted of him, and when escorted into the council chamber, was astonished beyond measure when the recorder commanded him to raise his right hand and be sworn in as mayor of the city of East Portland until July 1.

The council then proceeded to canvass the votes of the election, the result of which may be found elsewhere, and then adjourned to meet to-morrow night.

HERE ON A VISIT.

Mrs. E. B. Willis and son, whose husband was formerly a stenographer in Portland, but who is now connected with the Record-Union, of Sacramento, is in the city, a guest of Mr. Bullock. They will remain about two weeks visiting friends on both sides of the river.

GONE TO SAN FRANCISCO.

Mr. A. E. Hammond, of the firm of Hurlburt & Hammond, surveyors, has gone to San Francisco on very important business. He will return the latter part of the week with a wife.

GOOD TIME FOR "OLD-TIMERS."

The Oregon Pioneers Will Hold Their Seventeenth Annual Reunion To-day

The seventh annual reunion of the Oregon pioneers will be held in this city to-day.

The day will be observed with the usual procession in the afternoon and public exercises, appropriate to the occasion, at the Exposition building immediately after the procession disbands.

As previously stated, the procession will be formed at the court house by the grand marshal, Fred R. Strong, at 1 o'clock P. M., the out on Fifth street from the court house, march down Fifth to Alder, up Alder to Twelfth, down Twelfth to B, and out B to the Exposition building. The exercises there will be as follows:

Music	Band
Prayer by the chaplain	Rev. Jesse Moreland
Annual address	Hon. Orange Jacobs
Music	Band
Presentation of flag by H. M. Chase, of Walla Walla, to the Grand Encampment of Indian War Veterans.
Short address by	Governor Miles C. Moore, of Washington Territory.
Response by Grand Commander of the Grand Encampment of Indian War Veterans,	L. F. Mosher.
Recitation, a patriotic poem suitable to the early days,	Miss Hassie Ingersoll.
Occasional address	Hon. James K. Kelly
Music	Band

This will close the public exercises, immediately after which the annual meeting of the association will be held to hear reports of officers and elect officers and a board of directors for the ensuing year. No one is eligible to vote at this time except those who have paid their annual dues.

Those who desire carriages should send in their names to George H. Himes, secretary, on or before 10 o'clock this morning.

All entitled to return transportation of reduced rates should make application to the secretary at the earliest possible hour for the necessary certificates. At the same time they may obtain their badges and tickets for admission to the Exposition building in the evening.

In the evening a grand ball will be given at the Exposition building, and an opportunity given in spacious rooms, entirely remote from those occupied by dancers, for that which is akin to the old-fashioned campfire, where stories may be told, songs sung, poems recited and the experiences of past days lived over again.

WOMEN TEMPERANCE WORKERS.

Regular Weekly Meeting of the W. C. T. U. Held Yesterday—Business Transacted.

The regular weekly meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held at their new rooms, No. 209½ First street, yesterday afternoon.

The report of the secretary was read and accepted.

The executive committee reported that the union was compelled to vacate the rooms at No. 1222 First street, on account of their already being rented to other parties for the next month. Pleasant and commodious rooms were secured at 209½ First street. A lease of them was secured for two and a half years. All outstanding debts were canceled and a balance left in the treasury, the full amount to be reported at the next meeting. The report of the committee was accepted.

Mrs. Riggs reported donations from the firms of Beach & Co., Cleveland Oil and Paint Company, Kelly, Dunn & Co. and Whittier, Fuller & Co. for material for fitting up the new rooms. The report was accepted and ordered by the union that a notice thanks be tendered in writing to said firms for their liberality. A vote of thanks was also tendered in writing to Mr. Karne for much needed assistance rendered in moving and preparing the hall.

Dedicatory services were held last Friday night. An appropriate address was made by Mrs. Skelton, of California, and most excellent music furnished by Mrs. Elsea and son, assisted by a lady friend.

Rev. Mrs. Newell, a white ribbon sister from Salem, brought the union cheering words from their union and bade them a hearty Godspeed in their work.

RUN OVER BY THE CARS.

The Remains of an Unknown Man Picked Up in Pieces Near Bridal Veil.

Manager C. W. Johnson, of the O. R. & N. Co., yesterday received the following dispatch from Bonneville, showing that an unknown man was run over by the cars about two miles east of Bridal Veil:

"Train No. 2, engine 56, Engineer Ferguson, found and ran over the remains of a man about two miles east of Bridal Veil.

"The body was so mangled that it was unrecognizable. We picked up the pieces of the body and clothes and laid them on a plank at the side of the track. I turned his pocket-book containing $10 and received check from Bridal Veil to Multnomah falls, over to the section foreman, who was notified to go to Bridal Veil and report the matter to the agent there. The man must have been killed by a west-bound train as pieces of his clothing would indicate.

"A later dispatch from Bridal Veil said: 'No officer is here to take charge of the body found by No. 2 east of here. The section foreman is watching it. Please say if the coroner of Multnomah county has been notified.

Coroner A. P. Dellin has been notified and will go after the remains this morning.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

THE CALCULATION IS NOT CORRECT.

PORTLAND, June 17.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

You are quite correct in doubting the accuracy of the computation of the New York Sun, quoted in your issue of this date, as to the time required for the water contained in the South Fork reservoir to pass over Niagara falls. Taking the Sun's own figures as a basis, that body of water, viz: 68 it was, would have passed over in exactly three hours, four minutes and forty-eight seconds.

ELECTIONS IN THE CITIES.

Municipal Contests in Portland, East Portland and Albina.

Decided Victory for the Anti-Lotan Faction—Halfpenny the Only Republican Defeated —Fight in Albina.

POLICE COMMISSIONER	Richard Everding.
COUNCILMEN, First Ward	Richard Gerdes.
COUNCILMEN, Second Ward	W. A. Scoggin.
COUNCILMEN, Third Ward	Tyler Woodward.

The city election yesterday was one of the most warmly contested held in years, and resulted in a decided victory for the anti-Lotan faction.

The police department exhibited great energy and activity, and worked as if not only their official positions but their very existence depended on their gaining the victory for the "citizens" ticket, and the result of their exertions was the election of Messrs. Gerdes and Scoggin, while Woodward managed to keep ahead of their man in the Third ward and retains his seat by twenty-seven majority.

There was a good deal of excitement around the polling places, but everything was orderly, and the election passed off quietly, as usual.

The result will probably be a change in several city offices, but will make but little difference to the public generally.

THE RESULT.

POLICE COMMISSIONER.

Richard Everding, rep., received 673 votes in the First ward, 541 in the Second and 784 in the Third, making a total of 1998 votes.

COUNCILMEN.

First Ward—
M. D. Wakeman, rep	615
Richard Gerdes, dem	930
Blank	2
Total vote cast	1,547
Gerdes' majority	295
Second Ward—
R. H. Schwab, rep	515
W. A. Scoggins, dem	585
Total vote cast	1,049
Scoggins' majority	70
Third Ward—
Tyler Woodward, rep	756
Geo. C. Sears, citizen	729
Total vote cast	1,504
Woodward's majority	27

EAST PORTLAND ELECTION.

The following were elected officers of the city yesterday:

MAYOR	J. T. Stewart
RECORDER	W. R. Bishop
MARSHAL	W. C. Morgan
TREASURER	W. D. Pape
ASSESSOR	H. H. Holmes
COUNCILMEN, First Ward	M. J. McMahon
COUNCILMEN, Second Ward	J. M. Stott
COUNCILMEN, Third Ward	E. Martin
COUNCILMEN, Fourth Ward	J. J. Murphy

The entire republican ticket was elected except Frank Harvey for marshal and William Halfpenny for councilman from the Fourth ward. There was no opposition to Mr. W. D. Pape, candidate for treasurer, nor to Mr. H. H. Holmes for assessor. Mr. S. Bullock, who was plaited on a so-called citizens' ticket yesterday morning for treasurer, immediately issued a dodger, which read as follows:

This is to certify that I have not authorized my name to be used as a candidate for city treasurer on citizens or any other ticket. S. BULLOCK.

It is justice to say that Ross Merrick, who was placed on this ticket for councilman from the Second ward, did not authorize the same. Who over put out the ticket put these and other names on them without their consent, and this attempt to drag men into the contest in this way aroused no small indignation.

There was also a turgid and bombastic circular distributed in cart loads around the city "that caused everybody to smile."

It was a very quiet election. There were no disturbances to chronicle. The merits of the successful candidates have been fully discussed, and now the best wishes of every true citizen is with them. Their responsibilities are greater than any set of officers East Portland has ever elected.

The total vote cast yesterday was 1,998, which is much less than a year ago, which may be accounted for from the fact that a full vote was not brought out.

THE ELECTION AT ALBINA.

MAYOR	D. J. McLauchlin
TREASURER	A. Stoldt
COUNCILMEN (1st ward)	Peter Knox, R. S. Craig
COUNCILMEN (2d ward)	A. Kraft, D. Harnott
COUNCILMEN (3d ward)	C. M. Richman,

Tie between E. S. Ross and J. Mooney.

The election at Albina yesterday passed off quietly, though the contest was quite close in all the wards except the First. There were two tickets in the field—the citizens', headed by D. M. McLauchlin for mayor, and the people's ticket, headed by J. H. Steffen.

Following is the result of the votes cast in the different wards: Three hundred and seventy votes were polled in the First ward, of which McLauchlin received 277 and J. H. Steffen 93. In this ward the citizens' ticket was elected by a handsome majority. The number of votes cast in the Second ward was 110. Steffen received 59 votes and McLauchlin 50. In this ward one councilman of the citizens' ticket was elected and one of the people's. Ninety-six votes were cast in the Third ward with 2 majority for McLauchlin.
